Learning outcomes: The course aims to explore the political and public discourse about the European Union, EU-politics and policies, mainly in Slovakia but also in other European countries. The course aims to equip students with advanced level knowledge and understanding of EU as an issue in political competition, in identifying political actors, and factors which affect the public debates. Moreover, patterns of voting behaviour in EP elections across the EU are analysed.
Class syllabus: European Union in Political and Public Discourse focuses on public perception of the EU, and different aspects of EU understanding as well as patterns of voting behaviour in the European Parliament elections across the EU countries. It will explore also the images of EU and symbols related to the EU. Cultural patters and images of EU integration and EU enlargement will be analyzed as well as some EU related referenda as case studies. The methodology of the course combines several approaches – quantitative and qualitative analyses, discourse analyses, but also analyses of marketing, campaigning and advertising. In addition to the academic readings media and campaign materials, public opinion polls, and other resources will be used.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

University: Comenius University in Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-620/15	Course title: Geopolitics in the 21st Century
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 28 / 28 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 1.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: It is possible to gain 100 points during the semester. 20 points for summaries, 30 points for the seminar paper, 12 points for active participation, 20 points for presentation, 18 points for the test. To get an A one needs at least 91 points, to get a B one needs 81 points, to get a C one needs 73 points, to get a D one needs 66 points and to get an E one needs 60 points. Those who fail to obtain 60 points will not receive the credits for the course.
Learning outcomes: The aim of the seminar is to offer to students a complex perspective on geopolitics in the 21st century. After discussing the basic question as to what is geopolitics, the course will deal with the postcolonial approach to geopolitics at two levels – at the level of development discourse between the Global North and the Global South and at the level of inequality between the East and the West. The beginnings of geopolitics that persist today will be sought in colonialism and we will discuss the basic elements of today's world in relation to colonialism. Apart other things also the origins of development cooperation. The division of the world on racial basis will be the topic of the next class and the whole section connecting geopolitics and development will end with a class on development practice today. A class on the new scramble for Africa and its material resources will follow and after that we will discuss critical geopolitics unrelated to the postcolonial approach. Then geopolitics will be analyzed in its relation to popculture. The whole course will end with a discussion about how to change the world and who is entitled to do it. The last class will serve as a feedback to the course.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

University: Comenius University in Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-550/15	Course title: Organizations and Institutions
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 28 / 28 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 1.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Students are expected to attend every lesson and join discussions about the assigned readings. Students are also required to turn in five short (300-400 word) comparisons of the texts selected for each lesson. These short reflections are due at noon on the dates of the lectures. During the last lesson, there will be a short test. As a part of the course, students will write a (2200-2500 word) final paper in which they will interpret data gained through one in-depth interview with a person about her/his work in an organization in which they are employed. The final paper is due on January 15, 2017. The final grade will be based on the sum of points gained for five short papers (max. 5x6 – together 30 points), class discussions (max. 10 points), test (20 points) and final paper (40 points). Late submissions: short papers – 2 points less, final paper – 5 points less Grades: A = 90-100 points, B = 80-89 points, C = 70-79 points, D = 60-69 points, E = 50-59 points, F = 0-49 points.
Learning outcomes: The aim of the course is to get to understand organizations and get familiar with various theories and methods which are applied in organization studies. Organizations will be explored in relation to more general themes and concepts, such as institutions, work, legitimacy, bureaucracy, post-bureaucracy, management, power, ideology, identity, position, culture, process, stability or change. Students will learn to comprehend current organizations in both broader context and (contentious) intra-organizational relations and to differentiate between normative, critical and analytical interpretative perspectives.
Class syllabus: 1. Organizations, organizing, institutions 2. Classic forms of organizing and bureaucracy 3. Organizational change and post-bureaucracy

4. Power, legitimizing strategies and managerial narratives 5. Identity, position of subject, resistance, alternative organizations 6. Organizational culture and practice 7. Test, final paper discussion
Recommended literature: All the texts will be available to students in a pdf form. There will be around 10-12 papers or book chapters to read during the whole course (mostly 2 per a bi-weekly lesson). All texts will be in English.

Learning outcomes: The aim of the course is to clarify the basics of scientific research methods and its meaning in political science, including public policy and administration. Furthermore, the aim is to explain to the students the similarities and differences between scientific investigation and other forms of gaining insight in the social life. Overall, the course is designed to familiarize graduate students with various research strategies and styles of social science research (qualitative in particular) and to prepare them to employ those methods in writing their seminar papers and final theses. The aim is to give to the students an insight into research from inside, introduce them to the logic of research process, explain to them particular methods of data collection and analysis emphasizing the method of grounded theory and case study. Students will engage in practical research exercises in a combination of individual and team assignments as a preparation to the seminars. Particular methods taught during this course include interviewing, coding, Qualitative Content Analysis (QCA), Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) and Legal Analysis (LA).

Recommended semester: 1.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: weekly tests, 32%; final test, 20%; lab exercises, 24%; group project, 24%
Learning outcomes: The course is an introduction to data analysis and quantitative research methods. Students will learn how to conduct surveys and experiments and how to analyse various types of data and interpret the results by using jamovi statistical software. The course is practically oriented – lab exercises will provide students with opportunities to acquire the necessary analytical rigour and insight required for conducting graduate-level quantitative research projects.
Class syllabus: 1. Introduction + R setup, jamovi setup and getting started; 2. Scientific approach to social phenomena + data; 3. Research design + descriptive statistics; 4. Measurement + graphs; 5. Surveys and questionnaires + correlations; 6. Reading week; 7. Causality + hypothesis testing; 8. Experimental design + group comparisons; 9. Prediction + linear regression; 10. Evaluation research + multiple regression; 11.-13. Group project; 14. Wrap-up and concluding discussion.
