For the final test, which reflects the content of the course, the student can get a maximum of 90 points. The final evaluation is created by the sum of the achieved points, while the evaluation A corresponds from 93 to 100 points, the evaluation B: 85 to 92, the evaluation C: 77 to 84, the evaluation D: 69 to 76, the evaluation E: 61 to 68 points and in case the student gets less than 61 points his/her rating is FX. Learning outcomes: The aim of the course is to master the basic concepts related to probability theory and mathematical statistics, which are needed to plan and evaluate empirical quantitative research. In addition to theoretical knowledge, the student will also gain skills in the use of statistical methods in selected statistical software.
Class syllabus: Principles of data collection. Data types (numerical: continuous, discrete, categorical: nominal, ordinal). Basics of probability theory (conditional probability, binomial rule, random variable). Distribution of a random variable (normal, geometric, binomial, central limit theorem). Basics of statistical induction (point estimation, confidence intervals, basis of testing statistical hypotheses). Statistical induction for categorical data. Statistical induction for numerical data. Introduction to linear regression. Basics of two-dimensional sorting (contingency table, graph) and analysis of the dependence of two categorical variables.
