COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2023/2024
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF/A-dVC-017/22	Course title: Active Participation in a Scientific Event Abroad (Published Abstract)
Educational activities: Type of activities: Number of hours: per week: per level/semester: Form of the course: on-site learning, distance learning
Number of credits: 15
Recommended semester:
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The student prepares an abstract that is accepted by the organizers of the scientific event held abroad (conference, symposium, congress, etc.). The student participates in the scientific event, the costs associated with it being covered by grant funds—usually from the supervisor's project, or from a Comenius University grant for young researchers. At the scientific event, the student presents his/her paper, answers questions and participates in the discussion of other papers. On his/her return, he/she informs colleagues in the workplace about the results of the event and may publish a report on it. He/she will submit the abstract published during the event to the publication register. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 30/70 Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 30/70
Learning outcomes: The student demonstrates his/her ability to find a topic and to formulate an abstract attractive to the organizers of the scientific event and succeed with them in the competition. He/she will deepen his/her knowledge in the field and his/her scientific communication skills, and will strengthen and broaden his/her contacts in the professional community.
Class syllabus: The course does not constitute a standard unit of higher education. The student cooperates with and follows the recommendations of the supervisor regarding the preparation of the abstract, the paper, and its presentation. The procedure and timing are determined by the student himself/herself, taking into account the deadlines set by the organisers of the event.
Recommended literature: The literature needed for the output will be determined in collaboration with the supervisor, taking into account the subject area and current state of research. Literature that is not available in the Academic Library or available through external information sources will be provided by purchasing at the initiative of the student or by using the interlibrary loan service.
Languages necessary to complete the course: Slovak, English, other if necessary (conference languages)

Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 1 / 1 per level/semester: 14 / 14 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 2., 4.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The students are expected to study the assigned literature, actively participate in min. 85% of the course program, present and hand in a due time a final paper in a form of a thoroughly elaborated syllabus. The study materials are made available to the students in electronic form. The system of evaluation follows the current grading rules of the Faculty of Arts, Comenius University in Bratislava. Grading scale: A = 100% – 92% B = 91% – 84% C = 83% – 76% D = 75% – 68% E = 67% – 60% Fx = 59% – 0% Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0
Learning outcomes: Students are versed in current trends and methodological literature concerning teaching history at bachelor and master levels. They are ready for practical application of skills – they prepare an elaborated syllabus for teaching of one subject of their choice at the university level (design of content, choice of readings, forms of teaching and ways of grading, specifics of high school and university teaching, peer-review process aimed at transfer of practical experiences of doctorands and their lectors gained while studying and teaching at universities abroad, concentration of “scholar in the class” approach).
Class syllabus: 1. Professional preparation of university teachers. Basic documents on university education and resulting standards of education. Setting of teaching outcomes in the class. Supporting individualisation of study, designing individual study plans. Reflecting individual capacities:

particular study program and its position in the general curriculum, institutional memory, anthropology of academic life. "Scholar in the classroom" as a concept.

2. Sources. Orientation in current literature related to the subject of study. Models and deterrents. (CEU/CRC Collection, Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching, Initiative on the Doctorate, etc.)

3./4. Subjects taught in humanities and social sciences, syllabus as a sensible guide. Subject in the context of the complete curriculum. Goals and objectives. A professional researcher in the role of a lecturer, transfer of information on cutting-edge knowledge to the classroom. Chronological, conceptual and other possible frames of the syllabus.

5./6./7./8. Historical lecture/seminar. Methods and skills supportive for discussion. Teaching techniques for smaller and larger audiences, moderating and enhancing discussions, preparation of teaching material. Possibilities of source analysis (visual artefacts, texts, sound, multimedial elements), making use of IT skills for history teaching. Preparation for systematic e-learning. Subject site, presentation, tests and questionnaires (rethinking graphic, formulation of questions, etc.) Academic discussion.

9. Seminary paper. Setting the task. Didactic objectives for specific steps of education. Setting the workload, evaluating the complexity of topic and possible approaches to fulfilment of the task.

10./11 Review. Setting the scoring table, revision and commenting of student works. Plagiarism, predatory practices (current university and academic documents), evaluation of work (currently valid university and academic documents). Limits of objectivity. Application of IT skills in evaluation of seminary assignments.

University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF.Dek/A-dSZ-099/22	Course title: Dissertation Thesis Defence
Number of credits: 30
Educational level: III.
Course requirements: A doctoral student may apply for permission to defend his/her dissertation if <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a) he/she has obtained at least 150 credits (in a study programme for the proper completion of which the achievement of 180 credits is a prerequisite) or at least 210 credits (in a study programme for the proper completion of which the achievement of 240 credits is a prerequisite), (b) fulfils the conditions laid down in the individual study plan; and (c) has authored at least three scientific papers related to the topic of the doctoral thesis, two of which must be published and the third either published or accepted for publication. A request for permission to defend the dissertation is submitted in writing to the Dean through the Doctoral Studies Office. The application shall be submitted at the latest five months before the end of the standard length of studies; if the doctoral student's studies exceed the standard length of studies, the application shall be submitted at the latest five months before the end of the academic year in which the defence is to take place. The application shall be accompanied by <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a) the dissertation, (b) a summary of the main results of the dissertation, normally of two standard pages, c) copies of all publications and other elaborations, if they are not part of the dissertation; if the doctoral candidate attaches the output from the CU publication database, he/she does not need to submit copies of publications, d) a list of published works with full bibliographical data and unpublished scientific works and performances of the PhD student, as well as reviews of them and, where appropriate, testimonials about them, (e) a justification of the differences between the original dissertation and the submitted dissertation, if the doctoral candidate submits a new dissertation in the same field of doctoral study after an unsuccessful defence, f) confirmation from the editorial board of the acceptance of the scientific thesis for publication, if it is a scientific thesis accepted for publication. The dissertation shall be assessed by three/three referees. At the end of the written assessment, the referee(s) shall comment on whether he/she recommends the thesis for defence and shall propose a pass or fail classification. The successful defence of the dissertation is the end of the doctoral studies. The defence of the dissertation is evaluated by the classification grade pass or fail. The overall result of the duly completed doctoral studies shall be graded as pass. If the doctoral candidate has been assessed with a failing grade at the dissertation defence, he/she shall be entitled to one revision period. A failing grade at the remedial term of the dissertation defence is a reason for exclusion from the studies. The dissertation defence and the announcement of its results are public. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100

Learning outcomes:

The defence of the dissertation demonstrates the student's ability to think critically and to gather and evaluate information, as well as his/her readiness for independent scientific and creative activity in the field of research or development.

Class syllabus:

The dissertation defence takes place in the form of a scientific debate between the doctoral student, the dissertation opponents, the members of the examination committee and other participants about the knowledge gained and the contribution of the dissertation.

The procedure for the defence of the dissertation:

1. the chairperson of the examination committee will present the doctoral student's curriculum vitae, announce the essential information from the supervisor's report, an overview of the doctoral student's scientific works and their responses,
2. the doctoral candidate shall briefly state the essential content of his/her dissertation, its conception, results and contribution,
3. the opponents will present the essential content of their opinions,
4. the doctoral candidate gives his/her opinion on the evaluations, in particular comments on all suggestions and comments and answers questions,
5. the chairperson of the examination committee opens a discussion in which all participants in the defence may take part; the discussion verifies the correctness, validity, scientific originality and relevance of the knowledge contained in the thesis,
6. the doctoral candidate answers all questions during the discussion and takes a position on all suggestions and comments made by the participants of the dissertation defence,
7. the examination committee decides on the result of the defence in a closed session in the presence of the dissertation opponents and the supervisor,
8. the announcement of the result of the dissertation examination is made in the presence of the student(s) and is public.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2023/2024
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF/A-dVC-013/22	Course title: Expert Article in a Non-Indexed Journal / Expert Chapter or Article (less than 36 000 signs)
Educational activities: Type of activities: Number of hours: per week: per level/semester: Form of the course: on-site learning, distance learning
Number of credits: 10
Recommended semester:
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The student will write an expert paper published or accepted for publication in a non-indexed journal or an expert monograph or a chapter/paper of less than 36 000 signs. In the case of a monograph or chapter/paper, the output must be published or accepted for publication in a reputable foreign or national journal or publishing house. The student will produce the output under the methodological guidance of the supervisor. The student shall have a clear and demonstrable authorial contribution to the output, the extent of which is expressed as a percentage. This percentage also becomes part of the record in the publication register. The number of credits shall be determined as the product of 35 x N, where N is a number less than or equal to 1 that expresses the doctoral student's share of authorship; if 35 x N is a decimal number, it shall be mathematically rounded to the nearest whole number. The definition of the scientific output of the publication activity is regulated by the Decree of the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sport of the Slovak Republic No. 397/2020, § 1, point 5. Violation of academic ethics results in the annulment of the credit evaluation. Completion of the course is without grade. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100
Learning outcomes: The student will demonstrate a comprehensive knowledge of the relevant field of research by writing the expert output. The outcome is a test of the student's ability to write a relevant text that raises clearly defined questions and issues. In the case of an output that is the work of several co-authors, the student will also deepen his/her ability to collaborate and coordinate the research activities.
Class syllabus: The course does not constitute a standard unit of higher education. The student cooperates with and follows the recommendations of the supervisor and, where appropriate, the editor of the output with regard to the focus, structure and method of preparation of the output. The process and timetable of the work is determined by the student, subject to the approval of the supervisor.

Recommended literature:

The literature needed for the output will be determined in collaboration with the supervisor, taking into account the subject area and current state of research. Literature that is not available in the Academic Library or available through external information sources will be provided by purchasing at the initiative of the student or by using the interlibrary loan service.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2023/2024
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF.KVD/A-dVD-014/14	Course title: Nationalism. Theory and Research
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 1 / 1 per level/semester: 14 / 14 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 2., 4.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Regular active participation and preparation for classes. Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment. Grading scale: 0-59%-FX, 60-67%-E, 68-75%-D, 76-83%-C, 84-91%-B, 92-100%-A Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0
Learning outcomes: Students will acquire skills to correctly identify the modalities of existence and functionality of social phenomena. They will get acquainted with the theories and methodologies of established historical schools (New cultural history, Begriffsgeschichte, Cambridge School of History of Political Ideas, Microstoria) as well as with selected research methods of social sciences (sociology, social anthropology and social psychology), which are applicable in historical research. Students will learn to competently work with critical social, anthropological and socio-psychological concepts and theories about social behaviour in the context of their own research; at the same time, they will learn to deliberately apply critical theories to their own thinking, interpretations and research. Students will learn to construct and apply interdisciplinary methodologies in the historical research of social phenomena.
Class syllabus: Course schedule: 1.–2. social phenomena and their functioning: national ideologies and folk sociology, national history and national historiographies (on how systems of thought are constructed and reproduced; in particular: about the social institutions, organizations and artefacts on the basis of which the perceived reality of nations have been socially constructed and reproduced). 3.–4. social phenomena and their functioning: cognitive background – essentialism, entitativization, reification, social stereotyping (about how the human mind represents the social world; the cognitive modalities humans apply in the creation of knowledge concerning social groups and categories in their everyday social interactions).

5.–6. social phenomena and their functioning: social practice – discourse, power structures – legislation, indoctrination, control, social institutions, organizations promoting national ideologies (about the processes of social construction of the reality of nations).

7.–8. methodology of historical research of social phenomena: identification of common epistemic errors in determining the ontological status of social institutions and phenomena (what is a social phenomenon, social institution, how they exist, how are they created and what are the features of social/institutional facts vis a vis hard facts).

9.–10. methodology of historical research of social phenomena: the concepts of social group, social category and categorization, social identities and ethnicity and their use in research – deconstruction of nationalist concepts of nation and essentialist-reifying concepts of nationality / ethnicity / social ascription and affiliation / social identity.

11.–12. methodology of historical research of social phenomena: source base of historical research of social phenomena – research strategies, interpretive procedures, the most common mistakes made by historians of social history.

Number of credits: 8
Recommended semester: 1.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The students are expected to study the assigned literature, actively participate in min. 85% of the course program and to present an individual dissertation research project. (For external students, there is a possibility to postpone the presentation or the whole course up to one academic year. A postponement is possible only with a consent of the course teacher, supervisor, and the academic guarantee of the study program.) The PhD research project (in Slovak or in English), respecting the standards of an academic text (as defined in the actual University guidelines and instructions delivered by the organisers), should be submitted in due time scheduled by the organisers (usually one-month in advance). The study materials are made available to the students in electronic form. The system of evaluation follows the current grading rules of the Faculty of Arts, Comenius University in Bratislava. Grading scale: A = 100% – 92% B = 91% – 84% C = 83% – 76% D = 75% – 68% E = 67% – 60% Fx = 59% – 0% Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0
Learning outcomes: After successful completion of the course, the students have a basic theoretical overview necessary for elaborating their dissertation: they are versed in the current state of research related to the topics of the course, they are able to apply theoretical knowledge and methodological approaches concerning the research of the phenomena of collective memory and collective identities, they are able to apply interdisciplinary approaches and use new knowledge in their own individual doctoral research. They acquire practical skills in designing individual research project, in presentation of research project and answering to academic review.

Class syllabus:

Historical research and methodology of research of social memory and collective remembering: overview of theories and concepts; historical study of collective memory – “memory studies” in recent historiography; methodical approaches in critical study of collective memory; production of the “content” of memory and memory politics. Nationalism and historiography. Methodical approaches to critical study of nationalism as a historical social phenomenon. Orientation in the discipline of nationalism studies: overview of influential theories of nation and nationalism (basic theoretical works: E. Gellner, E. Hobsbawm, B. Anderson, A. D. Smith, M. Hroch, J. Breuilly, M. Billig), research-oriented vocabulary. Ability of critical analysis of sources and of setting up and working with analytical conceptual apparatus. National historiographies in Europe in the 19. and 20. century as co-creators of nationalistic doctrines and national “grand narratives” – case studies. Problem of methodological nationalism in historiography and in social sciences – practical examples. Academic communication in the discipline, knowledge and its presentation.

Standard set of seminary lessons:

Day 1: Historical memory as a scholarly concept and as a cultural practice. Memory in the medieval era: saints, dynasties and other objects of “collective memory”. Communicative and cultural memory according to Aleida Assman – research field of oral history research of holocaust and the war-time Slovak state. “I do not speak German already and Slovak yet” –language situation in Slovakia past 1945 in the witness narratives.

Day 2: Theories of nation and nationalism – overview of the most influential theories. Methodical and theoretical problems related to research of nationalism and wider context of social phenomena in social sciences and historiography. (Identification frames in pre-modern Europe). Cultural nationalism in Slovakia in the 20. century (case study). Political biography – legitimate genre of historical scholarship?

Day 3: Presentations of projects followed by double peer review by a 2. year doctorand and a senior researcher specialised in the respective field, and discussion with special attention to improvement of skills in academic discussion.

Learning outcomes:

After successful completion of the course, the students have a basic theoretical overview necessary for elaborating their dissertation: they are versed in the current state of research related to the topics of the course, they are able to apply theoretical knowledge and methodological approaches concerning the research of social history of modern societies, modernisation theories and that of historical research of social stereotypes. They are able to competently apply the acquired theoretical knowledge and methodological concepts. They consciously develop their skills in designing of interdisciplinary methodologies and they are able to implement them in their own individual doctoral research.

Class syllabus:

Historical research and methodological approaches. Social stereotypes – history of concept and overview of the relevant social science theories. Social stereotypes and their presence in professional historiography – reproduction, legitimisation, reflection, analysis; Phenomenon of naïve social theories, social stereotypisations as historical phenomenon and a subject of research; Theories of modernisation and modernity, theories of modern state, power and rule (Karl Marx, Ferdinand Tönnies, Max Weber, Norbert Elias, Michael Mann, et al.), problems of classical modernisation theories; Concepts of state, political regime, community and society in historiography and social sciences (pre-modern versus modern context – discontinuities and continuities); Structures of power, rule and administration in antiquity and Middle Ages. History of state/states – nation-state as a frame of reference for historical research. Evolution of social structures, forms and dominance from prehistory to recent time. Premodern and modern state and society – questions of continuities and discontinuities (economic, political, cultural system, infrastructure and mobility, communication, reflection of time and space, technologies, construction of subject – the “modern human” and his/her “identity”, etc.) Usage and reproduction of key concepts of modernity within and outside of scholarly discourse: nation/nationality, ethnic group/ethnicity, race, class, identity etc. in social sciences in the 20th century, especially in historiography, methodical implications and problems, essentialism, reification of historical and present social categories and their critical assessment;

Academic communication, presentation of methodological chapters of dissertation theses, recension, “live” review.

Standard set of seminar lessons:

Day 1 : About who (which categories and groups of people) do we write as historians? Visual and textual forms of group stereotypes. Stereotypes and prejudices in social psychology: Their modes of existence and functioning; how can(not) we “measure” them and how we can limit their influence and impact?

Day 2: Where are the roots of modernity? Problems of interpretation of development trends in Middle Ages and early Modern Age. Modernisation – a dead end or a productive concept? Forming of bureaucracy in the environment of Hungary and Austria. Marx’s theory of social reproduction and historiography.

Day 3: Presentation of methodological chapters of dissertation theses, peer-reviews, senior researcher reviews, discussion.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2023/2024
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF/A-dVC-005/22	Course title: Scientific Paper in a Non-Indexed Journal / Chapter or Article (less than 36 000 signs)
Educational activities: Type of activities: Number of hours: per week: per level/semester: Form of the course: on-site learning, distance learning
Number of credits: 20
Recommended semester:
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The student will write a scientific paper published or accepted for publication in a non-indexed journal or a monograph or a chapter/paper of less than 36 000 signs. In the case of a monograph or chapter/paper, the output must be published or accepted for publication in a reputable foreign or national journal or publishing house. The student will produce the output under the methodological guidance of the supervisor. The student shall have a clear and demonstrable authorial contribution to the output, the extent of which is expressed as a percentage. This percentage also becomes part of the record in the publication register. The number of credits shall be determined as the product of $35 \times N$, where N is a number less than or equal to 1 that expresses the doctoral student's share of authorship; if $35 \times N$ is a decimal number, it shall be mathematically rounded to the nearest whole number. The definition of the scientific output of the publication activity is regulated by the Decree of the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sport of the Slovak Republic No. 397/2020, § 1, point 5. Violation of academic ethics results in the annulment of the credit evaluation. Completion of the course is without grade. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100
Learning outcomes: The student will demonstrate a comprehensive knowledge of the relevant field of research by writing the scientific output. The outcome is a test of the student's ability to write a relevant scientific text that raises clearly defined questions and issues and brings new knowledge. In the case of an output that is the work of several co-authors, the student will also deepen his/her ability to collaborate and coordinate the research activities.
Class syllabus: The course does not constitute a standard unit of higher education. The student cooperates with and follows the recommendations of the supervisor and, where appropriate, the editor of the output with regard to the focus, structure and method of preparation of the output. The process and timetable of the work is determined by the student, subject to the approval of the supervisor.

Recommended literature:

The literature needed for the output will be determined in collaboration with the supervisor, taking into account the subject area and current state of research. Literature that is not available in the Academic Library or available through external information sources will be provided by purchasing at the initiative of the student or by using the interlibrary loan service.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2023/2024
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF/A-dDA-008/22	Course title: Supervision of a Paper Presented at the Students' Research Conference
Educational activities: Type of activities: Number of hours: per week: per level/semester: Form of the course: on-site learning, distance learning
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester:
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The PhD student, in agreement with his/her supervisor, conducts a thesis of the student of I., or (in justified cases) II. degree, which is subsequently presented at a student scientific conference. The thesis may be produced within the framework of a course that the PhD student is leading or has led. The PhD student guides the student methodologically, helping him/her to conceptualise and design the research and commenting on the textual form. He/she participates in the preparation of the presentation and the method of the thesis defense. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 50/50
Learning outcomes: By conducting a thesis presented at a student scientific conference, the PhD student deepens his/her ability of conceptual scientific work and develops his/her pedagogical competences.
Class syllabus: The course does not constitute a standard unit of higher education. Conducting student work requires ongoing activity, meetings and consultations, as well as continuous reading and commenting on the emerging text, so that the author's energy and time are spent efficiently and the workload is appropriately spread over time.
Recommended literature: The literature required for the thesis is selected by the PhD student in cooperation with the author of the thesis, taking into account the topic, the thematic area and the current research in it. In the process of its acquisition, the funds of the Academic Library of Comenius University and external information sources are used.

Educational activities: Type of activities: other Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 28 Form of the course: on-site learning, distance learning
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester:
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The student cooperates in the administration of the course for Level I students or (in justified cases) Level II students. The focus of the course is directly related to the topic of his/her dissertation project. It may be a course that is not designated as a profile course in the programme of study; if it is a profile course, the student may only conduct the practicum. He/she participates in the preparation of the teaching in cooperation with the supervisor, and the supervisor is responsible for ensuring that his/her contribution to the conduct of the course is of an appropriate professional and didactic standard, as well as for the objectivity of the evaluation. The quality of the doctoral student's teaching is periodically assessed in a student survey and by the doctoral committee of the doctoral programme. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 50/50
Learning outcomes: The student will deepen his/her knowledge and insight in the given field of research by pedagogical activity - cooperation in the course management. He/she will apply his/her experience from his/her own studies and develop his/her didactic skills. Teaching activity in an area directly related to the topic of his/her dissertation project serves as a space for hypothesis testing and deeper reflection on individual aspects of the topic, thus contributing to the successful course of the dissertation project.
Class syllabus: The course does not constitute a standard unit of higher education. The student cooperates with and follows the recommendations of the supervisor regarding the focus, structure and didactic aspect of the teaching activity. That part of the course outline and syllabus which is developed by the student is subject to the approval of his/her supervisor.
Recommended literature: The literature required for the teaching activity will be determined in collaboration between the student and the supervisor, taking into account the subject area, current research in it, as well as the course syllabus and syllabus. Literature that is not available in the Academic Library or available through external information sources will be provided in advance by purchasing the publication at the initiative of the student or by using the interlibrary loan service.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2023/2024
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Course ID: FiF/A-dDA-001/22	Course title: University Textbook or Teaching Text Authorship (minimum 36 000 signs)
Educational activities: Type of activities: Number of hours: per week: per level/semester: Form of the course: on-site learning, distance learning
Number of credits: 15
Recommended semester:
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: The student will prepare the above mentioned pedagogical output in the scope of at least 3AH (60 standard pages) under the methodological guidance of the supervisor. The output must be published or accepted for publication in a reputable foreign or domestic publishing house. The student has a clear and demonstrable authorial contribution to the output, the extent of which is expressed as a percentage. This percentage also becomes part of the record in the publication record. The number of credits shall be determined as the product of $15 \times N$, where N is a number less than or equal to 1 that expresses the doctoral student's share of authorship; if $15 \times N$ is a decimal number, it shall be mathematically rounded to the nearest whole number. According to the Decree of the Ministry of Education, Science, Research and Sport of the Slovak Republic No.397/2020, a university textbook is defined as a didactic tool of higher education that presents a systematic set and interpretation of knowledge on one thematic unit, has a didactic purpose and relates to the study programme. The target group is a defined group of university students. It conveys the latest information in the field of research, has a clearly structured text, and contains a list of references and recommended reading. A teaching text or script is defined as a document of an educational nature that presents a systematic body and interpretation of knowledge. As a rule, it temporarily replaces a university textbook. The target group is a defined group of students. It complements textbooks and is necessary for the quality and effectiveness of educational activities. Violation of academic ethics will result in invalidation of the credit evaluation. Completion of the course is without grade. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100
Learning outcomes: The student will demonstrate a comprehensive knowledge of the given thematic unit and the relevant area of research by elaborating the above pedagogical output. He/she will also apply his/her didactic skills and experience from his/her own studies and from teaching first and possibly also second level students. The outcome is a test of the student's ability to critically select and summarise knowledge, to present it in a systematic and appropriate stylistic manner. In the case of an output that is the work of several co-authors, it will also deepen the student's ability to collaborate and coordinate.

Class syllabus:

The course does not constitute a standard unit of higher education. The student cooperates with and follows the recommendations of the supervisor and, where appropriate, the editor of the output with regard to the focus, structure and method of preparation of the output. The process and timetable of the work is determined by the student, subject to the approval of the supervisor.

Recommended literature:

The literature needed to produce the output will be determined in collaboration between the student and the supervisor, taking into account the subject area and current research in it. Literature that is not available in the Academic Library or available through external information sources will be provided by purchasing the publication at the initiative of the student or by using the interlibrary loan service.
