Course ID: EBF/E-3-aET-036/22	Course title: General Church History 1
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 26 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 10
Recommended semester: 1., 2., 3., 4..
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: assessment in the examination period – oral examination Regular attendance at lectures and oral examination in the examination period. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100
Learning outcomes: The aim of the subject is to expand and improve knowledge of the PhD. candidate about the development of the church in the Antiquity and the Middle Ages. The intent is not only to precise familiarity with the chronological list of events, but also the ability to discover interrelations of the events, i.e. the causal relationship. The aim is to develop competence to interpret objectively the historical facts, events and central turning point of history. The PhD. candidate is obliged to close study of standard historical works related to the topic of the Dissertation Thesis. The student will gain a critical, detailed understanding of the development of the Christian religion and its institutions and thinking from its inception in the first century AD until the Reformation. The student is able to identify, classify and evaluate the importance of major events and trends of the period, analyze the importance of key figures and interpret the relationship between church and state in the period.
Class syllabus: Close study and interpretation of the external and internal history of the Christian Church from its beginnings until the Lutheran Reformation and simultaneously expanded knowledge of the developments in the theological-dogmatic thought of the church as it found its expression in the formation of the classical Christian confessions of faith and later dogmas.

Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 26 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 10
Recommended semester: 1., 3.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: assessment in the examination period – oral examination Regular attendance at lectures and oral examination in the examination period. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 20/80
Learning outcomes: The student will adopt a balanced yet critical attitude to the distinctive problems of Slovak Lutheran historiography with respect to the main periods of the history of Christianity and Reformation on the territory of Slovakia via the combined method of teaching. The aim of the subject is for the student to gain knowledge of the local church history with special focus on the time of the spread of Reformation and the period of Counter-Reformation on the territory of Slovakia. Getting acquainted with selected writings of the Slovak Lutheran Church historiography, will increase the student's ability to apply scientific methods to the evaluation of the significance and role of Lutheranism in the cultural and political history of Slovakia, its contribution to spiritual and national cultural heritage.
Class syllabus: Close study and interpretation of the central and distinctive problems of the Slovak church history in the following periods: beginnings of Christianity in the region, the church in the medieval Kingdom of Hungary, beginnings and spread of Reformation on the territory of Slovakia, Counter-Reformation and Re-Catholicisation, the period of religious tolerance and confessional equality of rights; the struggles within the Lutheran church; church- and national issues in the struggle with the magyarisation; new organization of the Evangelical Church of the A.C. in the Czechoslovak Republic; the period after the World War II, modern church history.

Academic year: 2025/2026
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Evangelical Lutheran Theological Faculty
Course ID: EBF/E-3-aET-022/22	Course title: History of Philosophy
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 26 Form of the course: on-site learning
Number of credits: 10
Recommended semester: 2., 4.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: assessment in the examination period – oral examination Regular attendance at lectures and oral examination in the examination period. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 20/80
Learning outcomes: The aim of the subject is to expand the knowledge of the PhD. candidates of Evangelical-Lutheran Theology in the field of History of philosophy. After completion of the course the doctoral student acquires not only knowledge of the relevant philosophical notions and terminology, but he/she will understand their usage in the relevant historical period. Acquired knowledge allows him/her to apply the given notions in the further study through comprehensive grasp of subjects that constitute the core of the theological and philosophical discussion of his/her research focus. After the completion of the course, the PhD. candidate acquires methodological skills allowing him/her to participate in the academic discussions and engage in polemics on some basic philosophical problems. Following the acquired methodological skills and knowledge he/she will be able to grasp and critically evaluate respective arguments in use in the past, and he/she will be able to formulate his/her position in the form of a written thesis. The subject „History of philosophy“ serves especially as an auxiliary discipline for the field of Systematic Theology, Church History, or History of Dogmatic Theology and philosophy of religion. The course is also recommendable for the PhD. candidates who focus on the historical and current hermeneutical problems within the Biblical Sciences and Practical Theology.
Class syllabus: We will focus conceptually and thematically on the area of philosophical problems that are historically delineated by the epoch of classical Greek philosophy until the relevant philosophical movements of the present. From the perspective of the thematic selection we concentrate especially on deeper understanding and interpretation of the key notions from the history of the Western philosophy from Antiquity till the present. We will focus especially on the topics and notions from the history of metaphysics, hermeneutics, logic, ethics and political philosophy taking into consideration primarily the context of Protestant theology and solution of philosophical problems with which the PhD candidate is confronted in the disciplines of systematic theology, church history, or the history of dogmatic theology, biblical sciences and philosophy of religion. When we emphasize primarily the topics from metaphysics, hermeneutics, logic, ethics and political philosophy, we will focus on these four key figures of the history of philosophy: Aristotle, Augustine, Immanuel Kant and Hans Georg Gadamer. After thorough study of the Aristotle's metaphysics, logic and ethics, we will analyze major representative of the patristic philosophy – Augustine. Within the medieval philosophy we will focus on the problem of universals concentrating primarily on concepts of the late scholastics (e.g. William Ockham and Gabriel Biel). The period of the renaissance philosophy will be based on the problems of Reformation in the context of comprehensive philosophical thought of this era. The modern age philosophy will be investigated on the background of the discussion between empiricism and rationalism, followed by the essential definition of the Enlightenment, clarifying especially the stance of Enlightenment towards religion. The History of philosophy in the 19th and 20th century will be presented on the comprehensive characteristics of the work of Immanuel Kant and thought movements, which responded to Kant's philosophical initiative. In the closing part we will focus on the most important philosophical movements of the 20th century: phenomenology, existentialism, structuralism, analytical philosophy and hermeneutics. We will as well introduce the key figures of philosophy of religion or religious philosophy of the 20th century.
