| Learning outcomes:Student shall have a basic knowledge of art in the 15th to 18th centuries. He shall be able to identify the great transformations of art in the late Gothic and the birth of the Renaissance in Italy. Moreover shall understand the importance of the position of cities and their influence on the development of art in humanism and the Renaissance, which passed into Mannerism as a bridge to the Baroque of the 17th century. Student shall be able to identify the expansion of Baroque art on a geographical basis and thus the emergence of new areas.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                |

| Learning outcomes:The course provides an overview of the transformation and development of art at the turn of the 19th and 20th centuries in the context of scientific and technological progress, social and political changes. The look at the development of fine and applied arts, architecture, music, dance, and literature creates the preconditions for a better understanding of the overall social modernization in the period before the First World War, which is symbolically labelled the Belle Époque. Students can identify trends which became crucial for the modern period in the 20th century, especially the so-called Soviet avant-garde. Equally important for understanding of social development is the history of film, visual art, theatre, and other forms which have emphasized the interaction with society. Students gain competencies enabling them to analyse modern art and culture in correlation with modern understandings of the individual and society. |                                                                     |

| Course requirements:Students are evaluated on the basis of the results of the written test they are required to take during the examination period. The form of the test questions indicate students they are expected to give a factual description of the topic, presenting the facts without any further analysis or generalization. The classification scale is the following:100-92 % of the max. number of points A,91 – 84 % B,83 – 76 % C,75 – 68 % D,67 – 60 % E,<60% FxViolation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment. The exact regular and retake dates will be published in the AIS during the credit week. Maximum number of possible absences: 2. Students with more absences, resulting from objectively justifiable and documented reasons, can complete the course under the following conditions: for each absence beyond the set framework, students need to submit a paper of around 5 standard pages on a pre-assigned and consulted topic. The paper must include an introduction, the main part (without footnotes), conclusions and the bibliography.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): Scale of assessment preliminary/final: 0/100 |                                                                                     |
| Learning outcomes:The course aims at making students familiar (in situ, or on the website of galleries / museums, portals of memory institutions, through virtual exhibitions) with early modern art, which is physically “accessible” to people today. At the end of the course, students are able to identify those items from the material culture of Slovakia that concern the 16th - 18th centuries, and what information these works of art and period architecture can provide about past centuries. Students have an overview of the best known facts from the different regions of the country and the legacy the different early (modern, professional, national or otherwise identified) societies left behind. Students are familiar with the historical context of the existence of works and with information                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                     |

| Learning outcomes:The students will acquire a deep understanding of the key historical processes of the 19th century European history, from the political, social, economic, intellectual, gender, legal, religious and migration perspectives. The course „Chapters of European History 1861-1918“ is designed to equip students with competencies in historical interpretation and source hermeneutics, as well as in fundamental orienting within scholarly literature on the relevant topics of the 19th century. In this way, the course allows students to understand and learn how to historically analyze and interpret texts, different contexts, and uncover correlations of different streams of political thought, in a comparative perspective that accounts for the diversity of the European experience. The course pays special attention to developing historical reasoning and argumentation skills based on the broadly conceived socio-political transformations of 19th century Europe. Upon completing the course, students will be able to rely on effective explanatory devices relevant to the phenomena of modern state- and nation-building, secularization and social transformation, allowing them to provide crucial and well-informed historical context to problems and challenges of the present day, by relying on professional and effective oral and written expression. |                                                                |

| Learning outcomes:The student knows the key theoretical background and didactic aspects of creative writing as a method applicable in the teaching of the mother tongue and foreign language and literature and other humanities at various levels of education. The student is able to apply creative writing as a method in the teaching process and thus stimulate the development of exploration and experimental creativity competencies of their students, thus contributing to the development of students' personality through self-expression, self-knowledge, self-reflection and self-learning. The student is able to apply practical methodological procedures in their pedagogical practice. At the end of the course, students have a general idea of what creativity is, what its manifestations are and the principles of its development; they are able to develop lateral thinking, as well as metaphorical expression in their pupils and to use in their pedagogical practice techniques aimed at generating ideas and searching for topics; they can apply the acquired knowledge in their own academic and creative activities. |                                                         |

| Learning outcomes:The student is familiar with the key theoretical background and didactic aspects of creative writing as a method applicable in the teaching of the mother tongue and foreign languages and literature and in other humanities at various levels of education. The student is able to apply creative writing as a teaching method and thus can stimulate the development of experimental creativity competencies of their students, thus contributing to the development of students' personality through self-expression, self-knowledge, self-reflection and self-learning. The student is then able to apply these practical methodological procedures in their own pedagogical practice.At the end of the course students: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- have mastered some procedures improving writing, literary and creative competencies;</li> <li>- are able to critically reflect on the creative process and creative products;</li> <li>- are able to reduce texts to an absolutely essential minimum ;</li> <li>- use various techniques of reception and creation of shorter texts.</li> </ul> |                                                         |

| Learning outcomes:Successful completion of this course will provide students with a basic overview of the fundamental principles of intercultural management. They will understand the dimensions of culture according to Geert Hofstede. By completing the course, students will gain a basic overview of intercultural differences between countries, learn about different forms of verbal and non-verbal communication, and should acquire appropriate communication skills in a multicultural environment. Based on intercultural training and rehearsal of model situations, they are able to resolve conflicts in a multicultural team using appropriate communication skills and other soft skills.                                                                          |                                                   |

| Learning outcomes:The course is designed to familiarize students with the history, historiography and theories around modern revolutions and conceptions of democracy, in a comparative and global perspective. By focusing on both intellectual and socio-political histories of the revolutions and their attempts to bring about democratic emancipation of different groups, the course ensures that student acquire a profound understanding of the key events of the 19th century history, as well as their implications in the longue durée . The course „Democracy and revolution in the 19th century“ is designed in a way that combines factual and interpretative work, thus prompting the students to develop skills of historical interpretation, argumentation and contextualization, through source-based discussions. It, moreover, equips students with skills required for fundamental orienting within scholarly literature on the topics relevant to the course. In this way, the course allows students to understand and learn how to historically analyze and interpret texts, different contexts, and uncover correlations of different streams of political thought, in a comparative perspective that accounts for the diversity of the European and global experience alike. Upon completing the course, students will be able to orientate in wider European and global historical and scholarly debates on different conceptions of modern democracies and underlying processes that led to various revolutions of the 19th century. Students will, moreover, be able to employ secondary skills developed throughout the course, namely professional and effective oral and written expression, as well as historical contextualization and argumentation. |                                                                      |

| Class syllabus:1. The contribution of the final work for the given field of study depending on its nature and degree of study. The evaluation of the diploma thesis takes into account whether the student adequately processes the selected topic at the level of scientific study with a representative selection of professional literature, whether the chosen scientific procedures are appropriate and appropriate, and whether he adequately works with hypotheses that can be verified. The diploma thesis should be a clear contribution in the relevant field of study;2. Originality of the thesis (the final thesis must not have the character of a plagiarism, must not infringe the copyrights of other authors), part of the documentation for the defense of the final thesis as a subject of state examination is the protocol of originality from the central register.3. Correctness and correctness of citation of used information sources, research results of other authors and author groups, correctness of description of methods and working procedures of other authors or author groups;4. Compliance of the structure of the final work with the prescribed composition defined by Internal Regulation no. 12/2013;5. Respecting the recommended scope of the final thesis (the recommended scope of the diploma thesis is usually 50 - 70 standard pages - 90,000 to 126,000 characters, including spaces), the adequacy of the scope of the thesis is assessed by its supervisor;6. Linguistic and stylistic level of work and formal arrangement;7. The method and form of the defense of the final thesis and the student's ability to adequately respond to comments and questions in the opinions of the supervisor and the opponent.8. In the teaching of art-educational subjects, the final work and its defense may also include the presentation of artistic outputs and performances. |                                                |

| Course requirements:The student takes tests throughout the semester aimed at assessing receptive competence based on the thematic units of the textbook, followed by a comprehensive written examination at the end of the semester. The student is required to achieve a minimum success rate of 60% in all components of the assessment.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                      |
| Learning outcomes:The aim of this course is to introduce participants with no prior knowledge of Dutch to a method for acquiring receptive language competence that enables an acceptable level of text comprehension. The objective of the introductory course is to develop language competence at the A1 level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages, with a particular focus on receptive skills in Dutch, as well as translation and interpreting competence from Dutch as the source language into Slovak. The target audience consists of students—particularly those with knowledge of English and German and/or Scandinavian languages—who are interested and motivated to work with Dutch and Dutch-language sources, such as selected chapters from Dutch and Flemish press, academic publications, or archival materials from the Netherlands, as well as texts intended for translation and interpreting from Dutch. |                                                      |
| Class syllabus:Work with the textbook is supplemented by current texts and audiovisual materials. Real-life language communication situations are simulated. Basic translation and interpreting exercises are included.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                      |
| Recommended literature:The primary didactic method is Dutch for Reading Knowledge (C. Van Baalen et al., John Benjamins), which begins with texts on architecture and design, secularization and social security, migration, water management, postcolonialism in the Netherlands, the Dutch Golden Age, and related topics. Each chapter contains three core texts drawn from journals, newspapers, or online sources.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                      |

| Learning outcomes:The aim of this course is to introduce participants with no prior knowledge of Dutch to a method for acquiring receptive language competence that enables an acceptable level of text comprehension. The objective of the introductory course is to develop language competence at the A1 level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages, with a particular focus on receptive skills in Dutch, as well as translation and interpreting competence from Dutch as the source language into Slovak. The target audience consists of students—particularly those with knowledge of English and German and/or Scandinavian languages—who are interested and motivated to work with Dutch and Dutch-language sources, such as selected chapters from Dutch and Flemish press, academic publications, or archival materials from the Netherlands, as well as texts intended for translation and interpreting from Dutch. |                                                      |
| Class syllabus:Work with the textbook is supplemented by current texts and audiovisual materials. Real-life language communication situations are simulated. Basic translation and interpreting exercises are included.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                      |
| Recommended literature:The primary didactic method is Dutch for Reading Knowledge (C. Van Baalen et al., John Benjamins), which begins with texts on architecture and design, secularization and social security, migration, water management, postcolonialism in the Netherlands, the Dutch Golden Age, and related topics. Each chapter contains three core texts drawn from journals, newspapers, or online sources.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                      |

| Learning outcomes:After successfully completing the course, students have a general overview of the way the history of Slovakia and Slovaks has been perceived at the different periods and how this perception has evolved since the Middle Ages to the present.Students go through and are able to identify the main development tendencies in the earliest Slovak historiography while acquiring the foundations of critical thinking on history. They are able to work with sources and critically analyze their content as well as the reasons why they originated. Upon completing the course, students are familiar with the fundamental Slovak history works (chronicles, annals, hagiographic sources, older 17th - 19th Century historiography) and are capable of applying this knowledge when producing their seminar papers and final theses, among others. |                                                     |

| Learning outcomes:The lecture focuses on the history of German language and culture in Slovakia from the Middle Ages to the present. It presents the settlement of Upper Hungary by German immigrants in three waves from the end of the 11th to the 18th century. The main focus is on their cultural and social activities in the towns (church, education, science, literature, art). Separate attention is paid to the characteristics of relict German dialects in Slovakia. in the areas of Bratislava, Hauerland and Spiš. Through audiovisual recordings, documentary films and memoirs, the course reflects on the position of the German language and culture in the different stages of the 20th century and reflects on the question of responsibility and the historical traumas of the German minority in Slovakia. |                                                                 |

| Course requirements: A student may take the state examination a) after obtaining at least the number of credits necessary for the proper completion of studies after obtaining credits for successful completion of state examinations, b) after successful completion of compulsory courses, compulsory elective courses and elective courses in the composition determined by the study programme, c) after fulfilling the student's obligations arising from Section 71, paragraph 3, letter b of the Higher Education Act, d) if there are no disciplinary proceedings against him/her. Successful completion of the subject of the state examination is one of the conditions for successful completion of the study programme. The subject of the state examination shall be evaluated by the State Examination Board with classification grades A to FX. The marking of the state examination or part thereof is decided by consensus by the examination board. If the Board of Examiners fails to reach a consensus, the marking of the State examination or part thereof shall be decided by vote. In accordance with the wording of the Faculty's study regulations (VP 5/2020, Art. 15), the framework dates for state examinations are set by the Dean and with the Faculty's study schedule. Departments are obliged to publish their state examination dates on the website at least 5 weeks before the examination. The student shall register for the state examination via the academic information system at least three weeks before the date of the examination. A student is entitled to one regular and two make-up examination dates. The regular examination date is the one for which the student first applied on the date set for the national examinations. If a student has been awarded a grade of FX in the regular state examination, the student may take the make-up state examination dates (a) on subsequent state examination dates in the relevant academic year, or (b) on state examination dates in any of the following academic years in accordance with section 65(2) of the Higher Education Act. If a student is unable, for serious reasons, to attend a state examination date for which he or she has registered, he or she shall be obliged to apologise in writing to the chair of the examination board in advance or, at the latest, within three working days after the date of the state examination or part thereof if there were serious obstacles preventing him or her from apologising in advance. If the student fails to appear for the state examination or part thereof on the specified date without an excuse, or if the chairman of the examination board does not accept the student's excuse, the student shall be marked with a grade of FX for that date of the state examination. The student must achieve a pass mark of at least 60% in all parts of the state examination. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100 |                                                        |
| Learning outcomes: The student has an overview of selected works of modern German, Austrian and Swiss literature and is able to place them in the context of the overall work of the authors and the broader socio-cultural discourses of the period. Emphasis is placed on one's own reading experience and ability to interpret a given literary work. The student is proficient in the basic theoretical knowledge of German phraseology and can demonstrate active phraseological competence.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                        |

| Learning outcomes:After completing the course, students acquire a deeper understanding of the relations between the two dominant parts of medieval Christian Europe in the early and high Middle Ages. Emphasis will be placed on the genesis and nature of mutual political and religious conflicts, which until now have permanently affected the cultural and civilizational framework of today's Europe.                                                                                                                  |     |       |                                                                            |     |     |     |

| Course requirements:Requirements for successful completion of the course:20% preliminary assessment - students are required to take active part in the learning period and to carry out the assigned tasks concerning the topics of their term papers. Their conclusions will be presented in preliminary shorter papers, where their methodology and proceeding will be explained. Comparisons with other European historiographies will be attempted as well.80 % final assessment - Students are required to submit a seminar paper concerning a topic from Church history, consisting of at least 10 standard pages (18,000 characters, including spaces). Students are assigned the topics of their term paper at the first meeting taking into account their personal interests. The deadline for submitting the term paper is agreed upon with the students. In their papers, students are expected to pay attention to the basic problems of Church developments in a chosen region on the territory of modern Slovakia (within the medieval Hungarian kingdom). Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Max. number of unjustified absences: 2Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 20/80 |                                                                                           |
| Learning outcomes:During the semester, students have acquired skills in using and deepening of their knowledge of Church history, its organizational structures, standing and social roles played in the medieval society. At the end of the seminar, they submit a term paper. They are acquainted with the roles of the Church in medieval society, system of Church organisation as well as functions of various Church institutions (loca credibilia, scriptories of monasteries, etc.).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                           |

| Course requirements:Students are required to take active part in the lessons. They need to produce, present and submit a written seminar paper on an assigned topic. The paper needs to cover the most important issues of the topic in question. It must include a PowerPoint presentation and be at least 10 pages long. Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Maximum number of unjustified absences: 2Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 30/70                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                          |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course, students are familiar with the final period of the communist regime in socialist Czechoslovakia, which faced a deep crisis in the mid-1980s. They are acquainted with the activities of the opposition against the regime and with the developments that led up to November 1989. They also have an overview of the domestic and foreign political situation and its impact on the events that took place in socialist Czechoslovakia. They understand the general situation in the 1980s and the causes of the collapse of the communist system in Eastern Europe. They can compare the situation in Czechoslovakia with that in Poland and Hungary.                                                                              |                                                                                                          |

| Learning outcomes:Students will learn about the political history of the Roman Empire, the situation at the end of the Roman Republic and the Roman Principate. Upon successful completion of this course, students are able to demonstrate an understanding of the complexities of the last two centuries of the Roman Republic, to find the causes of the crisis leading to the fall of the Republic and the emergence of a new political system. Students are able to work with ancient sources of various kinds, interpreting and evaluating them. They have knowledge of the basic rules of scholarly work (orientation in literature and sources on the period of ancient history, forms of citation, academic ethics). After completing the course, students have knowledge of scientific techniques for presenting their findings both orally and in writing. |                                                                                          |

| Learning outcomes:Students are able to independently and critically work with diaries, personal notes, memoirs and literary texts. Students find out that the semantic and formal depictions of reality in these texts do not circumvent specific historical, social and cultural conditions. Students understand the bi-dimensional aspect of memoirs, namely their documentary and their literary level.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                  |

| Learning outcomes:The students have knowledge about two most known interpretive theories of international relations – The Realism and The Liberalism. They are able to analyse the various views of relations between Nazi-Germany and Slovakia through German documents, which concern Slovakia. It's a diplomatic, economic, military or security relations topic.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                   |

| Course requirements:Students are required to attend the lessons regularly and take active part in them. They are also expected to present a report and deliver a term paper.a) Maximum number of justified absences: 3b) At the seminar, students need to work actively following the teacher's instructions.c) Students are required to present a (15-20 min. long) report. For that purpose, they need to be able to speak in front of an audience, elaborate a (printed, electronic) presentation, and answer questions. However, they can present an extra written paper instead of the presentation.d) Term paper: Students will be assigned the exact date and topic of their preliminary assessment at the beginning of the term. The report topics are clearly defined areas from Ján Kollár's life and work, e.g. Ján Kollár as an evangelical priest, Ján Kollár and the idea of the Slavic nation, etc.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                       |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course and their self study cycle, students have a detailed and complex overview of Ján Kollár's (1793 - 1852) life and work, either from focusing on one aspect of his life or work (in order to produce a seminar paper and presentation), or from the presentations of other areas. They have a different perspective of the first half of the 19th century. They are also able to independently obtain information (archival sources, digital collections, literature) from memory institutions and process a specific topic concerning biographical approach. Students are familiar with the different biographic methods and categories (biography, life and work, key life events; the impact the environment, education and descent have on the nature, abilities and activities of the individual; the individual as part of the social reality; work, politics, worldview, philosophy.).                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                       |

| Course requirements:To successfully complete the course, students are required to take active part in class during the lesson period of the term (in the form of questions and colloquial discussions) and to submit a seminar paper by the end of the credit week. During the first two teaching weeks, students choose a research area according to their own preferences, identifying the area/the whole/any subparts (according to the geomorphological division of the country) in Slovakia. On this example, they need to describe and identify the historical land structures. Based on the relevant source material, students need to characterize the interactions and connections in the environment (the natural environment, Man and the social environment), to reconstruct the state of the land in the early modern period and name the human activities that changed the face of the land. The seminar paper must have at least 10 standard pages and, from a formal viewpoint, it needs to have the relevant footnotes, include an introduction, a core, the conclusions, the bibliography, and optional illustrative pictures. In order to complete the course successfully and submit their seminar paper, students need to work systematically during the lesson period of the term. Maximum number of possible absences: 2. Students with more absences, resulting from objectively justifiable and documented reasons, can complete the course under the following conditions: for each absence beyond the set framework, students need to submit a paper of around 5 standard pages on a pre-assigned and consulted topic. The paper must include an introduction, the main part (without footnotes), conclusions and the bibliography. Grading scale: A = 100% – 92%           B = 91% – 84%           C = 83% – 76%           D = 75% – 68%           E = 67% – 60%           Fx = 59% – 0% Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): Scale of assessment preliminary/final: 100/0 |                                                                           |

Learning outcomes:

Students have an overview of the scientific (sub)discipline of environmental history, its development, methodological and conceptual contribution to historical science and their place in modern Slovak historiography in general and when researching the early modern age. Students understand the transforming factors that have affected and changed the land in the long run, they are able to identify human activity relics in the country. Students are also skilled in working with historical vocabulary and with visual, mainly cartographic period documents.

Class syllabus:

1. Initial session, students get acquainted with the subject associated and discuss openly its content, goals, and their responsibilities.
2. Environmental history in historiography. The history of the discipline in a global and, mainly, Slovak historical context. Scientific apparatus.
3. Environmental history - historical geography - history of technology - land ecology and others, and interest in the early modern period.
4. Sources.
5. Nature vs. anthropogenic influences. Historical landscape structures as a memory of the landscape.
6. Terminology. Oeonyms, toponyms, hydronyms.
7. Settlement landscape. The countryside and the urban space.
8. Agrarian landscape.
9. Mountain landscape.
10. Forest landscape.
11. River landscape.
12. Road infrastructure in the country.
13. Other elements historians can identify in the historical landscape structure.

In their seminar papers, students study the development of a specific aristocratic family in the Middle Ages, paying particular attention to the chronological development, property conditions, position in society, etc. These seminar papers can become the basis for their future diploma and other theses.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Maximum number of unjustified absences: 2Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 20/80 |                                                                                                  |
| Learning outcomes:During the compulsory optional seminar, students use and expand their knowledge of the medieval nobility, its social status and the tasks its members performed. At the end of the seminar, they produce a written seminar paper. Students deepen their knowledge of the nobility as a privileged estate in the Middle Ages, get familiar with the genesis of the nobility, and learn the parameters of aristocratic prerogatives. On the example of a specific aristocratic family, they demonstrate the theoretical knowledge about the nobility they have gained.Students gain experience implementing detailed heuristics of available literature and sources on the topic of their seminar work.                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                  |

| Course requirements:Course Requirements: Students are required to attend the lessons regularly and take active part in them. They are also expected to present a report and deliver a term paper.a) Maximum number of justified absences: 3b) At the seminar, students need to work actively following the teacher's instructions.c) Students are required to present a (15-20 min. long) report. For that purpose, they need to be able to speak in front of an audience, elaborate a (printed, electronic) presentation, and answer questions. However, they can present an extra written paper instead of the presentation.d) Term paper. Students are assigned the topics for their preliminary assessment at the beginning of the term. The topics of the reports are clearly defined areas from the life and work of Pavol Jozef Šafárik, e.g. Pavol Jozef Šafárik as a historian, Pavol Jozef Šafárik in Prague, etc.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                                |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course and their self study cycle, students have a detailed and complex overview of Pavel Jozef Šafárik's (1795 - 1861) life and work, both from focusing on one aspect of his life or work (producing a seminar paper and presentation), as well as from the presentations of other areas. They have a different perspective of the first half of the 19th century. They are capable of finding information on their own (archive sources, digital collections, literature) from memory institutions, and process specific areas concerning biographic approach. Students are familiar with the different biographic methods and categories (biography, life and work, key life events; the impact the environment, education and descent have on the nature, abilities and activities of the individual; the individual as part of the social reality; work, politics, worldview, philosophy.).                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                |

| Learning outcomes:Students will learn about the social and cultural history of Greece and its most important personalities. In practical tasks, students have the skills and abilities to work with ancient sources of various kinds, interpreting and evaluating them. Upon successful completion of this course, students are able to demonstrate familiarity with the basic features of ancient Greek history, culture, and art. They are able to demonstrate a historical understanding of the cultural and social significance of Athenian democracy, as well as a historical understanding of key episodes of Greek cultural and political history, figures in Greek politics, philosophy, and literature. They are able to demonstrate knowledge of scholarly techniques in presenting their own findings in both oral and written form. They understand the basic rules of scientific work (orientation in literature and sources on the period of ancient history, forms of citation, scientific ethics). |                                                            |

| Learning outcomes:Students have knowledge of the social history of the Roman Empire during the Principate period. Upon successful completion of this course, students are able to demonstrate a basic understanding of the social history of Rome and its everyday life, as well as an in-depth analysis of selected sources on the topic. They are able to work with ancient sources of various kinds, to interpret and evaluate them, and to apply the basic rules of scholarly work (orientation in the literature and sources on the period of ancient history, forms of citation, academic ethics). Upon completion of the course, students are able to demonstrate knowledge of scientific techniques for presenting their findings in both oral and written form. |                                                         |

| Learning outcomes:The students gain knowledge about the social and cultural history of ancient Greece and Rome and their most important personalities. They can work with different types of ancient sources, interpret, and evaluate them. After finishing the course, the students get to know the basic characteristics of ancient history, its culture and art. They get to know the cultural and social importance of Athens democracy and the key events of Roman cultural and political history. They can present their findings in oral and written form with the application of the basic rules of academical research (orientation in literature and sources to the ancient history, forms of citations, academic ethics).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                      |

| Course requirements:Students are required to attend the lessons regularly and take active part in them. They are also expected to present a report and deliver a term paper.a) Maximum number of justified absences: 3b) At the seminar, students need to work actively following the teacher's instructions.c) Students are required to present a (15-20 min. long) report. For that purpose, they need to be able to speak in front of an audience, elaborate a (printed, electronic) presentation, and answer questions. However, they can present an extra written paper instead of the presentation.d) Term paper: Students are assigned the topics for their preliminary assessment at the beginning of the term. The term paper and report topics are in the form "Life and Work" of a specific historian, e.g. Juraj Fándly, Ján Kollár, Pavol Jozef Šafárik, Ľudovít Štúr, Franko Vít'azoslav Sasínek, Július Botto, Andrej Kmeť, Jozef Hložanský etc.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                                   |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course and after their self study, students have additional information on the major figures of 19th century Slovak historiography both from having studied a historian and their work (in order to produce a seminar paper and presentation), as well as from the other presentations about other historians. They are familiar with the methods for analyzing historiographic works. Students are able to see the connection of the individual, period and other influences on the personality of a historian and their work (biography, the impact the environment and education on the nature, abilities and activities of the individual; the historian as part of society. Work, ideology, politics, philosophy.).They are familiar with the major primary and secondary sources. In a specific segment, they are able to apply the appropriate methods in the creation of a scholarly text in the practice.                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                   |

| Course requirements:Students are required to attend the lessons regularly and take active part in them. They are also expected to present a report and deliver a term paper.a) Maximum number of justified absences: 3b) At the seminar, students need to work actively following the teacher's instructions.c) Students are required to present a (15-20 min. long) report. For that purpose, they need to be able to speak in front of an audience, elaborate a (printed, electronic) presentation, and answer questions. However, they can present an extra written paper instead of the presentation.d) Term paper: Students will be assigned the topics for their preliminary assessment at the beginning of the term. The term paper and report topics are in the form "Life and Work" of a specific historian, e.g. Jozef Škultéty, Daniel Rapant, František Hrušovský, Branislav Varsik, Karol Golán etc.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                                   |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course and after their self study, students have additional information on the major figures of the Slovak National Revival both from focusing on one of them (in order to produce a seminar paper and presentation), as well as from the other presentations of other figures. They are capable of finding information on their own (archive sources, digital collections, literature) from memory institutions and process the biography of the selected figure. Students are familiar with the different biographic methods and categories (biography, life and work, key life events; the impact the environment, education and descent have on the nature, abilities and activities of the individual; the individual as part of the social reality; work, politics, worldview, philosophy.).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                   |

| Course requirements:Students are required to attend the lessons regularly and take active part in them. They are also expected to present a report and deliver a term paper.a) Maximum number of justified absences: 3b) At the seminar, students need to work actively following the teacher's instructions.c) Students are required to present a (15-20 min. long) report. For that purpose, they need to be able to speak in front of an audience, elaborate a (printed, electronic) presentation, and answer questions. However, they can present an extra written paper instead of the presentation.d) Term paper: Students are assigned their preliminary assessment topics at the beginning of the term. Their term papers and report topics process specific parallel issues in the Slovak and Czech environments, e.g. the literary language in the Czech and Slovak national movements, Newspapers and journalism in the Czech and Slovak national movements, Pan-Slavism in the Czech and Slovak national movements, etc. It is necessary to delimit a suitable topic from large areas as part of the preparation for the students' independent scholarly activity.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                                                      |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course and after their self study, students have additional information on the relations of the Czech and Slovak national revival movements either from focusing on their specific term paper topic or from the others's presentations. They are able to compare the conditions, starting points and results of specific segments in two neighboring national movements and in two different territories. They are familiar with the similarities and differences in the shaping of a modern nation on the examples of two related national movements (activity, ideology, personalities and their views.) They also have an overview of the key sources concerning the issues of the period in a wider Central European framework, as well as practical experience delimiting a specific topic from a large circle (in line with the required work structure).                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                      |

| Learning outcomes:The students have knowledge of political trends in South-Eastern Europe (Balkan) during the 19th and 20th Centuries. Except general characteristic of the interior policy in various regions and states (the Ottoman Empire, the forming so-called national states) the student is also able to orient in the policy of the Great Powers to Balkan (influences and conflicts between European powers). That gets them to be oriented also in current political situation in this region.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                   |

| Learning outcomes:This course hands a significant contribution for the students, primarily through the ability of work with the text as a discourse, as a historical material, and hence as a historical source. That is achieved by means of the methodological tools of intellectual history and the history of political thought, mainly presented by Quentin Skinner, John Pocock, but also by others such as Michael Foucault and John Austin.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                         |
| Class syllabus:The title of the course consists of two important contributions to the critique of power during the Communist regime in Czechoslovakia - Ladislav Mňačko - How Power Tastes (Ako chutí moc) and Václav Havel - The Power of the Powerless (Moc bezmocných). These are two significant landmarks in the study of intellectual history, which largely determined the form of criticism, both political and extra-political. In addition, the other important texts of Central European provenience are also introduced to the students. These include mostly texts by authors such as Gyorgy Konrád, Adam Michnik, Miroslav Kusý, Ivan Sviták, Jaroslav Šabata, Ágnes Heller, Gyorgy Lukács, Milovan Djilas and many, many others. |                                                                                                                         |

| Course requirements:The students' results are evaluated exclusively by continuously checking their performance during the teaching part of the semester. Grading takes place at the last meeting in the teaching part of the semester. After consultation with the teacher, students are assigned a topic for a short paper that is to be presented during the semester. The date of the presentation is set in advance, according to the syllabus. Students are also required to submit the short paper in written form. The short paper consists of at least 5 standard pages, including Introduction, Main text (without footnotes), Conclusion, Bibliography. To successfully meet their term tasks, students can have no more than 2 absences. In case of more (explained) absences, an individual assignment might be given as a substitution.Grading scale:A = 100% – 92%B = 91% – 84%C = 83% – 76%D = 75% – 68%E = 67% – 60%Fx = 59% – 0%Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                                                    |
| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course, students are familiar with the subject of research in a specific discipline of agrarian history - the history of viticulture and winemaking - in the history of Slovakia, Hungary and Central Europe. The discipline has gained an independent status in the agrarian history in the recent decades. During the feudalism, winemaking represented one of the dominant areas of economic activity. Students are thus able to understand developments of modern Slovak historiography and its methodological apparatus. They also acquire skills and knowledge necessary for work with edited sources and scholarly literature in this specific branch of the agrarian history.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                    |

| Learning outcomes:Students have knowledge of basic forms of communication in medieval society. In addition to classic forms such as written communication or diplomacy, they distinguish between symbolic and non-verbal communication. They can identify the role and meaning of rituals, gestures and symbols in the creation, maintenance and administration of medieval political units used by Central European dynasties of the High and Late Middle Ages. Students are able to identify and analyse the mechanism of governance and administration of medieval society using the political communication of these dynasties as an example. |                                                                                    |

| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course, students are familiar with the latest trends used to research the beginnings of female ruling hagiography in general and on the example of famous women from Central and Eastern Europe.They also have an overview of the basic behavioural patterns of outstanding medieval women. As part of the course, students also need to master the connection between the legacy of the Old Testament and its transcendence and updating when defining the behaviour of women who have passed into history as empresses, queens and saints. This way, students develop the ability to connect several spheres of research in humanities and is able to look at specific issues from the perspective of the mentality of the time. |                                                           |

| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course, students are familiar with the latest trends used to research the beginnings of female ruling hagiography in general and on the example of famous women from Central and Eastern Europe.They also have an overview of the basic behavioural patterns of outstanding medieval women. As part of the course, students also need to master the connection between the legacy of the Old Testament and its transcendence and updating when defining the behaviour of women who entered history as empresses, queens and saints. This way, students develop the ability to connect several spheres of research in humanities and are able to look at specific issues from the perspective of the mentality of the time. |                                                           |

| Learning outcomes:At the end of the course, students have a basic overview of the narrative sources of imperial provenance having to do with the history of Central Europe in the high middle ages. They are able to analyze the reasons why the different medieval imperial texts originated, i.e. the reasons their author had to write them, what might have influenced these authors when writing their work, and how his information influenced later historiography. Students are able to work with narrative sources of German provenance, understand the circumstances of their origin and develop the ability to compare them with sources from the Kingdom of Hungary, Poland and the Czech lands. They are able to apply the acquired knowledge in practice, for example for writing their seminar papers and theses. They are also able to use this theoretical foundations when taking other courses, especially when analyzing the contents of different sources. |                                                                                   |

The subject of the state exam is evaluated by the committee for state exams using the grading scale A-FX. The evaluation of the state examination or its part is decided by the examination committee by consensus. If the examination committee does not reach a consensus, the evaluation of the state examination or its part is decided by voting. On the basis of the wording of the study regulations of the faculty (Internal Rules and Regulations 5/2020, Art. 15), the framework dates of state examinations are set by the dean in accordance with the faculty's academic schedule. Departments are obliged to publish the dates of their state exams on the website no later than 5 weeks before they take place. The student registers for the state exam through the academic information system (AIS) at least three weeks before it takes place. The student is entitled to one regular and two resit attempts of the state exam. The regular attempt is the one for which the student applied for the first time within the deadline set for state exams. If the student was evaluated with the FX mark on the regular attempt of the state exam, the student may take resits of the state exam <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a) on the following dates assigned for state examinations in the relevant academic year</li> </ul> or <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>b) on the dates assigned for state examinations in one of the following academic years in accordance with § 65, par. 2 of the Higher Education Act.</li> </ul> If the student is unable to come on the day of the state exam for which they have registered on serious grounds, they are obliged to apologize in writing to the chairman of the examination committee in advance or no later than three working days after the date of the state examination or its part, if there were serious obstacles that prevented them to do so in advance. If the student does not attend the state examination or its part without an excuse within the specified period, or if the chairman of the examination committee does not accept their excuse, they are assessed with the FX grade from that attempt of the state exam. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100 |                                 |

| Learning outcomes:After completing the course, students have a theoretical knowledge of the history of the German language, can explain and describe linguistic peculiarities in the individual developmental stages and justify linguistic characteristics in the new Upper German. They are able to justify the historical and social factors that influenced the development of the German language. At a practical level, they can analyse texts from the Middle Upper German period and also have a basic knowledge of working with manuscripts from the Early Modern Upper German period.                                          |                                                    |

| Learning outcomes:Students have a comprehensive understanding of the development and history of modern political thought. Students have the competence not only to catalogue the various ideologies and their basic features, but are also able to understand, historically analyse and interpret the texts, contexts, and correlations of the various currents of political thought or intellectual milieus of the period. Rather than a flat analysis of ideology, the course emphasizes the agency and subjects of political thought, from which students are able to anchor political thought in space. Students are also able to analyse individual political and intellectual movements through historiographical and methodological schools and work dynamically with the underpinnings of contemporary discourses, enabling them to navigate the public sphere in a qualified way. |                                                             |

| Learning outcomes:Students get acquainted with older and current trends used when researching religiosity and its tasks in premodern society. Historians traditionally focus on the history of the Church in its institutional, political, and theological aspects. This course, however, teaches students to apply these common approaches to other related aspects of social and cultural history and historical anthropology. Therefore, they will be able to perceive the different forms and aspects of the religious life of society, while gaining an overview of the sources they can work with when dealing with religiosity as defined.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                          |

| Learning outcomes:After completing the course successfully, students are familiar with the basic development tendencies in the contacts between the Kingdom of Hungary and the Empire in the early modern period (16th - 18th century). They are able to perceive the processes in the region from a comparative perspective, while taking into account not only the political and military aspects, but also social, economic, cultural, intellectual and church history issues. On the basis of specific material, they are able to analyze and interpret supraregional influences - both material and ideological - in modern society and its specifics. They are familiar with different types of sources, can use them to analyze the relations in the kingdom and are able to work with them                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                       |

| Learning outcomes:The graduate of the course has theoretical knowledge in the field of terminological definition of information literacy and related terms. He understands problematic aspects of the information environment in the context of ethical use of information and information resources. He knows the most important domestic and foreign researches of information literacy, information literacy indicators, concepts and standards in this area. He is able to think critically, can categorize students in the context of their work with information and to design the integration of information literacy into education. He can incorporate the methodology of using information sources in the teaching process and propose procedures for solving problematic aspects related to the information environment. |                                                           |

| Learning outcomes:The graduate of the course will gain a basic knowledge of the modern intellectual history of the German-speaking countries from the mid-19th century to the present. The focus will be on thinkers and concepts of thought that have strongly influenced and reflected the social development of the German-speaking countries and have also played a key role in the European context: nationalism and modernization, the vicissitudes of the two world wars and the Holocaust, the post-war settlement of guilt and responsibility for the Second World War, and the rediscovery of Central Europe after the fall of the Iron Curtain. The course draws on the Anglo-Saxon interdisciplinary concept of Intellectual History, tracing the development of critical thinking about society across academic disciplines and reflecting on the changing position of intellectuals from the nineteenth century to the present. At the same time, it also takes into account a specifically German approach from the positions of Geistesgeschichte and Begriffsgeschichte, respectively. |                                                                           |

| Learning outcomes:Students get familiar with selected scholars of the early modern period in the Kingdom of Hungary and their opinions. By setting them in the specific context of their time, students will learn to consider important issues of that time, how their contemporaries perceived them, and their significance for the further development.The discussed questions include, for example, political power issues in the context of absolutism and class/estate/stavovských traditions, confessional diversity and the need for unification, attitudes towards education and health care, issues concerning the origin of people's national or denominational community, etc. Students are able to identify the different approaches that have                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                      |

| Learning outcomes:The students will acquire a deep understanding of the key historical processes of the 19th and early 20th century European history, from the political, social, economic, intellectual, gender, legal, religious and migration perspectives. The course „Chapters of European History 1861-1938“ is designed to equip students with competencies in historical interpretation and source hermeneutics, as well as in fundamental orienting within scholarly literature on the relevant topics of the 19th and 20th century. In this way, the course allows students to understand and learn how to historically analyze and interpret texts, different contexts, and uncover correlations of different streams of political thought, in a comparative perspective that accounts for the diversity of the European experience. The course pays special attention to developing historical reasoning and argumentation skills based on the broadly conceived socio-political transformations of 19th and early 20th century Europe. Upon completing the course, students will be able to rely on effective explanatory devices relevant to the phenomena of modern state- and nation-building, secularization and social transformation, allowing them to provide crucial and well-informed historical context to problems and challenges of the present day, by relying on professional and effective oral and written expression. |                                                             |

In the case of multiple absences (for serious reasons), the lecturer decides on the substitution of duties or on the repetition of the course. The student is evaluated according to active participation in class throughout the whole semester (sub-assignments, papers, translations and analysis of texts, discussion) and according to final colloquium.Violation of academic ethics will be punished, and the student will lose all the received points in the relevant assessment.Grading scale:0-59%-FX, 60-67%-E, 68-75%-D, 76-83%-C, 84-91%-B, 92-100%-AScale of assessment (preliminary/final): 100/0 |                                                         |
| Learning outcomes:The students gain an overview of epigraphic sources -Latin inscriptions and of epigraphy as a science and its importance for the study of the history of ancient antiquity. Students are able to apply basic rules for reading ancient epigraphic sources and they know how to interpret them in a historical context. They are able to work with and to interpret the ancient epigraphic sources of various kinds (fasti Romani, diplomata, miliaria, instrumenta publica, tituli sacri, tituli sepulcrales...). After successful completion of this course, the students know how to work effectively with epigraphic sources, and they also know the basic rules of reading them. The students are able to develop abbreviations, to translate and to interpret. The students are also able to present their knowledge by presenting their own findings and to discuss their interpretations.                    |                                                         |

| Learning outcomes:Students get familiar with the possibilities the study and use of a language offers to historians. The early modern period is characterized by the growing use of vernacular (“popular,” “national”) languages in written and official culture. For its multicultural character, the Kingdom of Hungary constitutes a very specific case in this respect. Therefore, students become familiar with various aspects of language in society, namely different languages and dialects coexisting together, literary vs colloquial languages, their social and cultural roles, the influence of confessional and political views and the way different language issues reflect in the works of scholars. At the end of the course, students are able to approach language from a historical perspective, in the intentions of methodological approaches of the time and can analyze the social and cultural (i.e. non linguistic) aspects of language. |                                                                        |

| Course requirements: All matters pertaining to state examination are set out in Article 14 of the Study Regulations of the Faculty of Arts. In the master's study programmes, the state examination consists only of the defence of the Master's thesis. The student chooses the department as a training centre which corresponds to the discipline within which he/she wants to write the final thesis. He/she reports this choice by the deadline set by the department, provided that he/she is able to find a supervisor and a suitable topic in the relevant department. For the successful defence of the Master's thesis as the subject of the state examination in the master's degree programmes conducted at the Department of British and American Studies, students will receive credits according to the current study plan (currently 10 credits). Requirements for the admission to the defence are as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- fulfillment of the requirements of the study plan concerning the prescribed composition of courses and their credit value so that after awarding the credits for the state examination the student obtains the required number of credits for the master's degree;</li> <li>- submission of the Master's thesis (electronically via the academic information system AIS) by the thesis submission deadline corresponding to the relevant state examination period according to the academic year schedule set by the faculty.</li> </ul> The thesis is evaluated by the standard grading scale (0-59% -FX, 60-67% -E, 68-75% -D, 76-83% -C, 84-91% -B, 92-100% -A) by the supervisor of the thesis and the designated opponent in the assessment reports, which are available to the student no later than 3 working days before the state examination. The supervisor's report shall also include the percentage of compliance results from the originality check protocols (CRZP, Theses), which must be explicitly evaluated by the supervisor with the wording "the thesis shows/does not show signs of plagiarism". The Master's thesis will take the following form: The defence will consist of a thesis presentation (the student chooses the form of the defence, the PPT format can also be used) and the student's response to a broader theoretical question, which is assigned to the student by the supervisor upon the Master's thesis submission. The supervisor will include this question in the assessment report as one of the points of discussion for the defence; it will also be included in the defence report. The thesis presentation must: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Include a clearly articulated thesis statement,</li> <li>- have a clear and logical structure of argumentation and findings,</li> <li>- reflect a new perspective on the issue as a result of adequate and appropriate work with the findings gained through own research, the conclusions of which the student is able to present and formulate.</li> </ul> |                                                        |

| Course requirements: The student must submit the master's thesis within the deadline specified in the schedule of the current academic year for the relevant date of the state exam. The master's thesis is submitted in electronic form via AIS. The work must meet the parameters determined by the internal quality system of Comenius University. The provisions of Article 14 of Internal Regulation no. 5/2020 (Study Regulations of the Faculty of Arts of Comenius University) apply to the evaluation of the master's thesis. The supervisor of the final thesis and its opponent will prepare evaluations of the master's thesis and propose a grade in the A-FX grading scale (0-59% -FX, 60-67% -E, 68-75% -D, 76-83% -C, 84-91% -B, 92-100% -A), which the student receives a minimum of three working days before the defence. Master thesis evaluation criteria consider the fulfilment of the goals of the thesis in its assignment, originality of the work verified by protocols of originality from the CRZP and Theses systems, to the results of which the thesis supervisor and the opponent express their opinions in their evaluations. Correctness and accuracy of citation of used information sources, compliance of the structure of the master's thesis with the prescribed composition defined by the internal quality system of Comenius University and linguistic and stylistic level of work and formal adjustments are also taken in account. The adequacy of the length of the thesis is assessed by the thesis supervisor. The student orally presents the content, achieved goals, and conclusions of the master's thesis, and answers the questions and comments of the thesis supervisor, opponent, or members of the examination committee. The committee will comprehensively evaluate the quality of the bachelor's thesis, assess the method and form of defence, and the student's ability to adequately respond to comments and questions from the evaluations of the thesis supervisor and the opponent. The student receives their final grade based on the average of the assessment of the thesis supervisor and opponent from their evaluations, and the assessment of the examination committee. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100 |                                                        |
| Learning outcomes: The student has mastered the basic requirements of writing a scientific text in compliance with the rules of academic ethics. The student knows the methods used in the field of study, is able to work on the chosen topic of the master's thesis at the level of scientific study, with a representative selection of scientific literature, with appropriately chosen scientific procedures and hypotheses that can be verified. After a successful defence of the master's thesis, the student is able to design, implement, critically reflect, and justify his research intention. The student understands the context of the problem, can clearly define research conclusions, state his positions, and make recommendations. He can respond argumentatively and flexibly to questions about the research topic, its methodology, and its conclusions.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                        |

| Course requirements: The student must submit the master's thesis within the deadline specified in the schedule of the current academic year for the relevant date of the state exam. The master's thesis is submitted in electronic form via AIS. The work must meet the parameters determined by the internal quality system of Comenius University. The provisions of Article 14 of Internal Regulation no. 5/2020 (Study Regulations of the Faculty of Arts of Comenius University) apply to the evaluation of the master's thesis. The supervisor of the final thesis and its opponent will prepare evaluations of the master's thesis and propose a grade in the A-FX grading scale, which the student receives a minimum of three working days before the defence. Grading scale: 0-59% -FX, 60-67% -E, 68-75% -D, 76-83% -C, 84-91% -B, 92-100% -A Master's thesis evaluation criteria: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The contribution of the master's thesis, the fulfilment of the objectives of the thesis in its assignment, and the requirements for the content of the master's thesis given by the internal quality system of Comenius University. It is assessed whether the student has worked on the chosen topic at the level of scientific study, with a representative selection of scientific literature, with appropriately chosen scientific procedures and hypotheses that can be verified. Demonstration of the ability to work creatively in the study program is evaluated and the degree of demonstration of knowledge and understanding of the diploma thesis is reflected.</li> <li>2. Originality of the work (master's thesis must not be plagiarized, must not infringe the copyrights of other authors); the documentation for the defence of the master's thesis also includes protocols of originality from the CRZP and Theses systems, to the results of which the thesis supervisor and the opponent express their opinions in their evaluations.</li> <li>3. Correctness and accuracy of citation of used information sources, research results of other authors and group authors, correctness of the description of methods and working procedures of other authors or group authors.</li> <li>4. Compliance of the structure of the master's thesis with the prescribed composition defined by the internal quality system of Comenius University.</li> <li>5. Respecting the recommended length of the master's thesis (the recommended length of the master's thesis is usually 50 – 70 standard pages = 90,000 to 126,000 characters, including spaces), the adequacy of the length of the thesis is assessed by the thesis supervisor.</li> <li>6. Linguistic and stylistic level of work and formal adjustments.</li> </ol> The student orally presents the content, achieved goals, and conclusions of the master's thesis, and answers the questions and comments of the thesis supervisor, opponent, or members of the examination committee. The committee will comprehensively evaluate the quality of the master's thesis, assess the method and form of defence, and the student's ability to adequately respond to comments and questions from the evaluations of the thesis supervisor and the opponent. | Learning outcomes: The student has mastered the basic requirements of writing a scientific text in compliance with the rules of academic ethics. The student knows the methods used in the field of study, is able to work on the chosen topic of the master's thesis at the level of scientific study, with a representative selection of scientific literature, with appropriately chosen scientific procedures and hypotheses that can be verified. After a successful defence of the master's thesis, the student is able to design, implement, critically reflect, and justify his research intention. The student understands the context of the problem, can clearly define research conclusions, state his positions, and make recommendations. He can respond argumentatively and flexibly to questions about the research topic, its methodology, and its conclusions.                                                                                                                               |

| Course requirements: Submission of the thesis by the deadline specified in the timetable of the current academic year for the respective date of the state examination. The thesis is submitted in an electronic version via AIS. The thesis must comply with the parameters specified by the internal quality system of Charles University. The provisions of Article 14 of the Internal Regulation No. 5/2020 (Study Regulations of the Faculty of Arts of Charles University) shall apply to the evaluation of the thesis. The thesis supervisor and the thesis opponent will prepare a thesis report and propose a grade in the A-FX grading scale, which will be available to the student at least 3 working days before the defence. 1. Contribution of the thesis, fulfillment of the thesis objectives in its assignment and fulfillment of the requirements for the content of the thesis given by the internal quality system of Charles University. It is assessed whether the student has treated the chosen topic at the level of a scientific study, with a representative selection of literature, with appropriately chosen scientific procedures and hypotheses that can be verified. Demonstration of the ability to work creatively in the field of study is evaluated, the degree of demonstration of knowledge and understanding of the thesis topic is reflected; 2. Originality of the thesis (the thesis must not be plagiarized, must not infringe the copyrights of other authors), the documentation for the defence of the thesis includes originality protocols from the CRZP and Theses, the results of which are commented on by the supervisor of the thesis and the opponent in their opinions; 3. Correctness and correctness of citation of used information sources, research results of other authors and author teams, correctness of description of methods and working procedures of other authors or author teams; 4. Compliance of the structure of the thesis with the prescribed structure defined by the internal quality system of Charles University; 5. Respect for the recommended scope of the thesis (thesis 50 to 70 standard pages (90,000 to 126,000 characters including spaces)), the adequacy of the thesis scope is assessed by the supervisor; 6. The linguistic and stylistic level of the thesis and formal editing. The student orally presents the content, achieved objectives and conclusions of the thesis and answers the questions and comments of the thesis supervisor, opponent, or members of the examination committee. The committee will comprehensively evaluate the quality of the thesis, assess the manner and form of the defence and the student's ability to respond adequately to the comments and questions in the thesis supervisor's and opponent's evaluations. The evaluation will be obtained from the arithmetic average of the evaluations from the thesis supervisor's, the thesis advisor's and the examination committee's evaluation. Scale of assessment (preliminary/final): 0/100 |                                                        |

| Course requirements: Submission of the master's thesis within the deadline specified in the schedule of the current academic year for the relevant date of the state exam. The master's thesis is submitted in electronic form via AIS. The thesis must meet the parameters determined by the internal quality system of the Comenius University. The provisions of Article 14 of the Internal Regulation no. 5/2020 (Study Regulations of the Faculty of Arts, Comenius University) apply to the master's thesis evaluation. The supervisor of the final thesis and its opponent will prepare assessments of the master's thesis and propose an evaluation in the A-FX grading scale, which the student has at his/her disposal min. 3 working days before the defence. Master's thesis evaluation criteria: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The contribution of the master's thesis, the fulfilment of the objectives of the thesis and the requirements for the content of the master's thesis given by the internal quality system of the Comenius University. It is assessed whether the student has developed a chosen subject at the level of a scientific study, with a representative selection of professional literature, with appropriately selected scientific procedures and hypotheses that can be verified. Demonstration of the ability to work creatively in the field of study is also assessed, and the degree of demonstration of knowledge and understanding of the master's thesis is reflected.</li> <li>2. Originality of the thesis (master's thesis must not be plagiarized, must not infringe the copyrights of other authors); the documentation for the defence of the master's thesis also includes protocols of originality from the CRZP and Theses, to the results of which the thesis supervisor and the opponent express their opinions in their assessments.</li> <li>3. Correctness of citing the selected information sources, research results of other authors and author's collectives, correctness of description of methods and working procedures of other authors or author's collectives.</li> <li>4. Compliance of the structure of the master's thesis with the prescribed composition defined by the internal quality system of the Comenius University.</li> <li>5. Respecting the recommended range of the master's thesis (the recommended range of the master's thesis is usually 50 - 70 standard pages = 90,000 to 126,000 characters, including spaces), the adequacy of the range of the thesis is assessed by the thesis supervisor.</li> <li>6. Linguistic and stylistic level of the thesis and formal layout.</li> </ol> The student orally presents the content, achieved goals and conclusions of the master's thesis and answers the questions and comments of the thesis supervisor, opponent, or members of the examination board. The commission will comprehensively evaluate the quality of the master's thesis, assess the method and form of the defence and the student's ability to adequately respond to comments and questions in the assessments of the thesis supervisor and of the opponent. The final evaluation will consider the evaluations from the supervisor's and opponent's assessment, the evaluation of the final thesis defence by the commission. |                                                        |

| Learning outcomes:The student has mastered the basic requirements of writing a professional text in compliance with the rules of academic ethics. He/she knows the methods used in his/her study field, is able to compose the selected subject of the master's thesis on a scientific study level, with a representative selection of professional literature, with appropriately selected scientific procedures and hypotheses that can be verified. After a successful defence of the master's thesis, the student can project, implement, critically reflect on and justify his/her research goal. He/she understands the contexts of the problem to be solved, he/she can clarify his/her research outcomes, form his/her own opinions and suggest recommendations. He/she can argumentatively and promptly react to questions concerning the subject, its methodology and conclusions.                                                                                                                             |
