COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2026/2027
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-910/22	Course title: Advanced Academic Writing Seminar
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 26 / 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester:
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: Assignments and grading: 1. Attendance and participation. This is an interactive course, the best way to learn is to come prepared, and be ready to make constructive contributions to class proceedings. Students are entitled for maximum 2 absences, which have to be justified according to Code of Studies. Three in-class activities will constitute part of the grade. Weight in grade: 30 % 2. Group project. At the beginning of the semester, students will be divided into groups. During the seminars, these groups will train writing skills related to specific genres of academic communication. They will also learn to provide constructive feedback on each other's work and act as supportive peers. The groups will keep a diary reflecting on this experience. At the end of the semester, the groups will present their experience to the whole class and submit a short report highlighting the most important lessons learned. Weight in grade: 30 % 3. Final paper. Students will submit a paper responding to one of the assigned prompts (descriptions of a real life research problem). The wordcount including bibliography will be 3000 words. The paper will include sections addressing the following: methodological and theoretical points of departure; opportunities and limits of the selected approach (what the selected approach can and cannot deliver); student's self-reflection on their own positionality in the writing process. Detailed instructions will be provided at the beginning of the semester. In the second part of the semester, students will have to seek peer feedback on their work in progress. Weight in grade: 40 % Students are entitled for 1 re-take of final paper. Students are entitled for maximum 2 absences, which have to be justified according to Code of Studies. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Course description and learning outcomes:

The course aims to strengthen students' understanding of diverse approaches to writing and training of writers. The seminars and homework assignments should help students improve their ability to communicate with other citizens in academic universe. The skill in focus is writing, although we will pay attention also to related skills: speaking, reading and listening. Course sessions consist of reading-based discussions and practical exercises on more advanced aspects of writing. Upon completion of the course, students should have a better understanding of variety of genres of academic communication (including a book review, policy report, research paper) and specific strategies writers use to communicate their findings and observations. The course places strong emphasis on communicative aspect of the writing process, and students will learn how to seek and provide feedback, how to responsibly contribute to and get the best out of an academic conference and how to connect to wider scholarly networks. Importantly, the course addresses common problems faced by writers at all stages such as procrastination and impostor syndrome.

Class syllabus:

Course contents:

1. Introduction to the course . Genres of academic communication.
2. Overview of basic elements: language, structure, literature review, designing of collection of new data.
3. Chasing your research problem. Strategies on brainstorming, drafting and organizing your thoughts. Getting over common problems such as procrastination and impostor syndrome.
4. Literature review. Where to start, how to take notes, how to evaluate which sources you have to read. Importance of brainstorming, experimenting and engagement of diversity of genres.
5. Research proposal and research article. Planning your time and resources. Making decisions on what is realistic in given time and context.
6. Language, structure and citation styles (and why do we need them). Understanding perspectives of one's interlocutors.
7. Peer review and types of feedback. Academic conferences, scholar networks. Preparing an abstract for a conference.
8. Writing shorter genres: Book reviews, Research Memos, Forum contributions.
9. Policy report and policy brief. Translating academic research for wider audiences. Understanding relationships between policy sphere and research sphere.
10. Speaking practice. Presenting your research proposal and work in progress.
11. Editing your own work and preparing it for submission. Checklists and keeping yourself accountable.
12. Final colloquium.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2026/2027
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-710/22	Course title: Conspiracy Theories
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture + seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester: 4.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course is based on ongoing assessment and students are encouraged to continuously prepare for weekly meetings and seminar discussions. Class participation, seminar work with weekly readings – 55 % Research paper – 45% Any plagiarism will result in an automatic Fx. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes: The course's objective help students to understand the emergent field of conspiracy studies. Students will develop skills how to examine the emergence of conspiracy theories as a distinct field of knowledge from a historical perspective and how this field went from the mainstream to the stigmatized fringes of culture and politics. They will learn about the conceptual battles over defining what a conspiracy theory means and how the label itself can be used for political exclusion and suppression of minority voices. They will build up the skills to investigate various historical conspiracy theories and their impact on broader culture, society, and politics. The course also aims to familiarize students with the latest findings about psychological motivations to accept conspiracy beliefs and the effects of political partisanship on conspiracy ideation. Students will then focus on the political impact and the uses of conspiracy theorizing in political communication and political propaganda, especially on the far-right political spectrum. By the end of the course, students should be familiar with the philosophical problem of defining and recognizing conspiracy theories, the cultural studies and anthropology views on the place of conspiracies in human imagination, but also with the findings from psychology and political science about motivated reasoning. Students should also be able to critically engage issues connected with conspiracy theorizing and its studies and to conduct their own analysis of a phenomenon connected to the broader topic of conspiracism.
Class syllabus:

Course contents:

The course is centered around discussions of weekly readings which cover these topics:

- What is a conspiracy theory?
- Philosophy of conspiracy theories
- Conspiracy theories in popular culture

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2026/2027
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-010/22	Course title: Foreign Policy of the EU
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 26 / 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester:
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course is graded: 1) Seminar activity and assignments – 40% of overall evaluation Students are required to read particular articles from their reading list and to submit assignments dealing with given readings. The assignments will be provided at the seminars and the students will have 20-30 minutes to answer the questions arising from the readings. Subsequently, one group will present their answers and the whole class will have a discussion on the assignment to make sure everyone understands the issues. The assignments will discuss the current events, challenges and prospects of the EU external relations. Each assignment will set questions related to the content and purpose of the article/reading, as well as its relevance to the studies of EU FP. The students are requested to work in group of minimum two and maximum three people. Assignment submitted by group of more than three will not be accepted. Individual assignments are eligible in cases the student missed the class due to internship, hospitalization or illness (confirmed by the organization and M.D.) or other reasons related with pandemics. In such cases, the assignments will be available by request and should be uploaded by the student in MS Teams. The deadline for submission will be adjusted on case by case approach. 2) Research proposal (theory and methodology) – 40% Research proposal should be no longer than 4000 words excluding references. The proposal should follow research design based on relevant literature and essential research question appropriate for the year of study. Student's task is to develop a research proposal on how to tackle the issue or what can be studied about the issue, including justification of the topic and state of art in the research field and of the reality. The core of the proposal is to provide appropriate theoretical or conceptual framework and methodology on how the student wants to proceed with the analysis. This includes a deep literature review based on the classes in the block A and relevant literature. The last part should comprise of expected results based on what the student has learned about the issue so far. The actual analysis does not have to be part of the project, the point is to train the designing of a research, where state of art of the reality, state of art of the academic literature and expected results play one complex unit. If the student decides to go with the full research, they can get more points, however, the focus will be on the design, not on the actual analysis and results.

The topics should be discussed with the lecturers and approved in order to avoid inappropriate topic or methodology.

Final paper should be uploaded to MS Teams by 23:30 on October 31. Bear in mind that MS Teams does not allow you to upload the paper later and delayed papers will not be accepted if no sufficient justification for the late submission is provided.

3) Case study - 20% (short presentation and moderating the seminar discussion)

As Block B is more policy oriented, the students shall prepare a short presentation on a case study related to concrete aspect of EU FP. The list of case studies is provided by the lecturers in advance. Students are working in pair (2) per topic. The presentation should be rigorous in a sense the student does not only describe the information they found but tries to put in the context of a specific question. Theoretical part is not necessary; however, the results of different research can help with the context into which the student shall put the whole presentation and lead the discussion.

The seminar will apply the system of a conference. Each seminar will consist of 3 brief presentation on the case study. After each individual presentation, the presenter (student) shall moderate their own discussion to topic with prepared questions for the class and interesting points that can lead to further discussion on the EU role in the world in the context of given EU policy. The preparation as well as the presentation shall be submitted to MS Teams for the lecturer's proof by Sunday before the presentation. The students then submit a report from the case study presentation and discussion by 23:30 on 31st December.

Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points

Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes: Students learn basic facts and frameworks of modern political philosophy and will be able to build up critical explorations of key topics in modern political philosophy pertaining to social justice and equality. By the end of the course, students will be able to: evaluate key concepts related to political philosophy of justice; identify the main arguments, positions, and approaches; evaluate and contrast normative arguments and construct their own arguments in political philosophy; and learn to implement theoretical and conceptual tools of political philosophy in the analysis of empirical cases.
Class syllabus: Course contents: Week 1: Introduction and course overview: What is political philosophy? The is vs ought in politics. The nature and methods of normative theorizing. What are utopias for? Introduction of some basic concepts; Week 2: Utilitarianism: Utilitarianism as a moral and political doctrine. What is utility? Is utilitarianism coherent? Should we be ‘effective altruists’?; Week 3: Liberal Equality – ‘Justice as Fairness’: Introducing Rawls’ A Theory of Justice, its importance and position in the current world of philosophy, the nature of the argument presented, methodological outline of his main arguments. Distributive justice and Rawls' 2 principles of justice;

Week 4: Liberal Equality – ‘Equality of What?’: What is the ‘currency’ of distributional justice: primary goods (Rawls), capabilities (Sen & Nussbaum), welfare? Ronald Dworkin and Equality of Resources. The role of resources and responsibility in theories of justice. Luck-egalitarian theories;

Week 5: Democratic Equality – Equality beyond distribution: doubts about equality as a normative ideal: prioritarianism (Parfit), sufficientarianism (Frankfurt), What is the point of equality: unconditional equals (Phillips), relational egalitarianism (Anderson) recognizes both status and material resources. Justice and the politics of difference, faces of oppression, and the myth of meritocracy (Young);

Week 6: Economic Liberty and Libertarian Justice: Robert Nozick and libertarian critique of Rawls. Liberty, self-ownership and the entitlement theory of justice. Hayek and the classical liberal view of economic freedom. Is justice possible under a free market? Liberalism vs libertarianism;

Week 7: Rescuing Equality from Liberals – G.A. Cohen and the Socialist Critique: G.A.Cohen on equality, incentives, and personal morality. Egalitarian critique of Rawlsian liberal equality, the difference principle, and inequality incentives. “If you are egalitarian, how come you are so rich?” What is the egalitarian ethos? Is socialism possible?;

Week 8: Making Justice Happen – Proposals for a better world: universal grants – stakeholding (Ackerman) and universal basic income (van Parijs); property-owning democracy (Rawls), reparations;

Week 9: Gender and Justice: Do political theories neglect the importance of gender in the society? Rethinking family and justice. Male-bias and the liberal theory responses to feminist critiques (Okin, Nussbaum, Rawls);

Week 10: Liberal Neutrality vs. Perfectionism: Liberal perfectionism: state fostering individual autonomy (Raz). The liberal requirement that state be neutral between differing conceptions of the good. The idea of Public Reason and Rawlsian Political Liberalism. Should the state be neutral? Can it? (Rawls, Quong, Nussbaum);

Week 11: Multiculturalism – Justice in Culture and Religion: Should some cultural and religious practices be treated differently from others? Diversity of cultures and religions in a democratic society and what makes them special. Issues of multiculturalism and the legitimacy of cultural accommodation (Barry, Parekh, Kymlicka, Song);

Week 12: Global Justice: Partiality and cosmopolitanism. The issues of global justice. The proper scope of justice and the division of responsibility between states and the international system. Justice in immigration, the case for open borders (Carens). Ethics of climate change.

Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 3.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course is evaluated continuously during the semester and does not contain a final exam. Students are expected to actively participate in each class session in order to provide feedback to their colleagues' master thesis projects. Throughout the semester, students are expected to submit 4 project assignments related to their master theses. In project assignment 1, students will formulate the topic and tentative title of their master theses. In project assignment 2, students will conduct a theory-driven literature review related to their topics and make a list of 10 most relevant articles, books and book chapters needed for the writing of their theses. In project assignment 3, students will formulate the research problem/s and research question/s central to their theses. In project assignment 4, students will describe research methods used in their theses. Students are expected to present their master thesis projects at the end of the semester. The final presentation should include a theory-driven literature review and a clearly formulated research design including thesis title, research problem, research question, and research methods. Each presentation should not exceed 10 minutes and is expected to be followed by peer-comments and discussion. Evaluation criteria: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 10 active class participations (1 active class participation = 1 point) = 10 points • 4 project assignments during the semester (1 assignment = 10 points) = 40 points • 1 final presentation = 50 points Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points

University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-930/22	Course title: Political Economy of the European Union
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 26 / 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester:
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course evaluation combines the ongoing assessment, presentations of the semestral group projects, and the final written exam. Students are encouraged to actively participate on seminar discussions and read the recommended literature. Structure of the evaluation: - Evaluation at seminars o Seminar assignments (24 points): A brief summary of the text recommended for the class, preferably structured around: a) author's main conclusions, b) main arguments supporting the conclusions, c) discussion with the author's conclusions. Assignments are to be submitted for each class, 30 minutes before the start of the seminar at the latest. Each student will have evaluated 8 randomly selected assignments. o Presentation of the assignment and the discussion (15 points): group presentation of the weekly assignment (see above) at the start of the seminar, followed by the class discussion. The evaluation will focus on the presentation of the text and the reactions on questions / comments raised in the discussion. - Semester group project (16 points): Presentations of the group projects at the end of the semester, based on the selected topics (groups of app. 3 students will be created at the start of the semester). Each group will prepare a project (preferably in ppt format) and present it to the class, followed by the discussion. Evaluation will be based on the content of the project, form of presentation, and the following discussion. - Final exam (45 points): Written exam with open questions. Exam is compulsory, each student must pass the exam to get the final evaluation. Students are entitled to max 2 re-takes of the exam, based on the Code of Studies. Students are entitled to max. 2 absences, justified according to the Code of Studies. When absent, students do not need to send their weekly assignments. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes:

Learning outcomes:

Students will gain knowledge of conceptual and analytical tools necessary for understanding the creation and functioning of the economic policies of the European Union:

- Role of institutions and structural conditions in the creation and functioning of the economic policies.
- Development of the selected economic policies of the European Union, i.e., monetary, cohesion, trade, environmental, agricultural policies, regulation of financial markets, management of economic crises.
- Analysis of the external and internal factors shaping the economic policies of the EU.

At the end of the course the students will be able to:

- Understand the functioning of the EU institutions relevant for the economic policies,
- Apply their knowledge to evaluate the functioning and results of the EU economic policies, reactions of the Union to the economic crises,
- Present qualified positions, supported by relevant arguments, on the EU-related economic issues, present positions to current debates about the European integration.

Class syllabus:

Course contents:

Week 1: Role of institutions in the capitalist economy

- Intro to the course, formal requirements
- What is the “political economy”
- Role of institutions in regulating the economy: main paradigmatic positions, concepts, definitions

Week 2: Regulating the trans-national markets

- Regulations on the trans-national markets & special case of the European Union
- EU regulatory institutions
- National and European competences

Week 3: Single currency with fragmented fiscal policies (1)

- Monetary cooperation and monetary union
- EMU and EU
- Single currency and economic convergence

Week 4: Single currency with fragmented fiscal policies (2)

- Fiscal rules: development of the SGP
- Economic governance
- Monetary policy of the ECB

Week 5: Hard & soft regulations: labour markets, social policies

- Employment and social policies in EU countries: integrating varieties of capitalism
- Competences of EU institutions, convergence & divergence of policies under single regime
- Challenges of flexibilization and digitalisation of the labour markets

Week 6: Regulating financial markets

- International and European regulations of financial markets
- Banking union
- Case of Brexit and its implications for financial markets

Week 7: Common Agricultural Policy

- Historical perspective on CAP: from corporate to national interests to European policies
- CAP reforms

Week 8: Cohesion policies and EU funds

- Single market and regional, economic, social inequalities
- EU regional funding & discussion on impacts

Week 9: Economic relations with external partners

- Trade and investment policies

- External and internal economic policies (EU industrial policy)

- Transatlantic trade & investment, China

Week 10: Environmental policy

- Development of EU competences in the environmental policy

- Global aspirations, internal divisions (Climate policy)

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2026/2027
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-700/22	Course title: Political Representation
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture + seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester: 4.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course is based on ongoing assessment and students are encouraged to continuously prepare for weekly meetings and seminar discussions. Class participation, seminar work with weekly readings – 55 % Research paper – 45% Any plagiarism will result in an automatic Fx. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes: Students will develop knowledge of the concept of political representation, both through a historical and a conceptual lens. They will learn how to differentiate between various conceptions of representation as they developed. Based on theoretical knowledge they will develop how to critically explore the normative question of good and fair representation in a democracy, the issues of institutional design, and the representation of the full diversity of modern societies. Finally, they will practice how to investigate current practices of representation, often enacted beyond the parliaments and the states, and how political theory currently reconciles the ideals of democracy with the necessities of delegation. By the end of the course, students will be able to identify main historical developments and critically engage the concepts of political representation. They should also be able to make arguments and critically engage normative issues connected with democratic representation and the institutional mechanisms available for their best realization.
Class syllabus: Course contents: The course is centered around discussions of weekly readings which cover these topics: Part I. Historical Development <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Week 1: Introduction. What is representation. What is political representation. The connection between representation and democracy. Introducing some basic terminology. Course overview.

- Week 2: Direct Democracy and Representation in Ancient Greece & Medieval Times (Manin 1997);
- Week 3: Development of Representative Assemblies: Geography and Elections (Manin 1997; Stasavage 2010, 2020);
- Week 4: The Birth of the Modern: Hobbes, Rousseau, Sieyes, & Burke on Representation
Part II. The Concept of Political Representation
- Week 5: Hanna Pitkin's Concept of Political Representation (Pitkin 1972);
- Week 6: Constituency, Electoral Rules, and Representation: Problems of Institutional Design (Rehfeld 2005);
- Week 7: Representing diversity: race, ethnicity, gender (Young 2000);
- Week 8: Quotas (Htun 2004; Krook 2009; Mansbridge 1999; Phillips 1995)
Part III. Political Representation Today
- Week 9: Expanding the Concept of Representation and the Challenges of Post-Democracy (Mansbridge 2003, 2009; Urbinati 2006);
- Week 10: Constructivist Turn and the Mobilization Conception of Representation (Disch 2021);
- Week 11: Representation Beyond the Parliament: Non-Electoral Forms of Representation & Innovations for Citizen Participation (Saward 2010; Smith 2009);
- Week 12: Trans-national & International Actors: Democracy, Multilevel Governance, and Political Representation.

Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 2.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: Seminar research paper divided into intermediate parts on: Assignment A 10 points + 5 points: elaboration of the theoretical part, including the research problem + 3 research questions Task B 10 points: defining the case study Task C 10 points: interview protocols Task D 10 points: qualitative interview (recording) + transcripts Task E 10 points: coding Research presentation 15 points Final paper 30 points: seminar paper Each assignment must be turned in on time and brought to class for discussion. A point will be deducted for each day late. Only the Final Paper can be retaken, not the other midterm assignments. Attendance will be registered. Cheating on a quiz or term paper will result in the loss of all points on that assignment and possibly FX in the entire course. Cheating includes plagiarism in any form. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes: The course aims to clarify the fundamentals of scholarship and its relevance to political science, including public policy and administration. Students will perceive the similarities and differences between scholarly work and other forms of knowledge production. Students will gain an understanding of different research strategies and styles of social science research (especially qualitative research) and be prepared to use these methods in writing term papers and theses. The goal is to give students an insider's view of scholarly work, introduce them to the logic of the research process, and explain specific methods of data collection and analysis emphasizing grounded theory and case studies. In doing so, students will gain knowledge and skills in the application of the following qualitative methods: interviewing, coding, qualitative content analysis, critical discourse analysis, and legal analysis.

Class syllabus:

Course contents:

1. Introduction (What does the scientific approach mean in the social sciences)
2. Philosophy of science
3. From theory to empirical research
4. Research design (case study)
5. Data collection: interview and observation
6. Interview: simulation
7. Data sources: policy documents and administrative data
8. Process tracing and international dimension of research
9. Analysis of legal documents

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2026/2027
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-980/22	Course title: Sectoral Policies EU in Practice
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 26 / 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 2.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course is based on continuous assessment. It aims in particular to gain practical knowledge of the functioning of sectoral European policies in Slovakia. Evaluation details: 1. Participate in seminars, read, analyze and discuss texts which are assigned "compulsory reading". (20 points) 2. Prepare one presentation (individually or in a team of up to 3 students), which would process a specific assignment for a given policy. (30 points). 3. Write a final thesis / project (2000-2500 words) on a topic related to the course as assigned by the lecturer (50 points). Students are entitled for maximum 2 absences, which have to be justified according to Code of Studies. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes: The objective of the course is to share with students experience with the practical functioning of sectoral policies. The course will cover mainly those areas that are not the subject of separate courses, it will focus on five key areas - environmental policy, common agricultural policy; regional and rural development; transport and social issues (employment, long-term care; social benefits etc.). By completing the course EU Sectoral Policies in practice, students will gain a basic orientation in selected sectoral policies - how they are implemented at the national level, what are the main problems, what are the possibilities and what is the practice of using different types of EU funds, etc. Part of the seminars and exercises will be provided by experts from individual ministries, resp. analytical institutions of the given ministries. As special emphasis will be placed on application practice in public policies in the Slovak Republic, graduates will gain the ability to better understand decision-making processes, legislation at the EU level and related national policies, as well as problems and challenges in application practice.

Students will also practice "soft skills" - how to formulate arguments and justifications for their arguments, how to critically evaluate ongoing public or political discussions related to the EU.

Class syllabus:

Course contents:

1.Introduction to the course. 2. Basic principles of cohesion policy; 3.Environmental policy; 4.Environmental principles as a cross-cutting priority; 5.EU Common Agricultural Policy; 6.Regional and rural development; 7.Policies of the Recovery and Resilience Plan; 8.Social Themes I, 9.Social Themes II; 10. Competences of the National Council of the SR' Committee for European Affairs ; 11.-12. Students' presentations to selected policies; 13. Conclusion, evaluation, feedback

Academic year: 2026/2027
University: Comenius University Bratislava
Faculty: Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences
Course ID: FSEV.ÚEŠMV/2-UES-650/22	Course title: Survey Research on Different Dimensions of Equity
Educational activities: Type of activities: lecture / seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 / 2 per level/semester: 26 / 26 Form of the course: combined
Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester: 3.
Educational level: II.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course consists of introductory week, lectures, feedback sessions, and independent group work whose main aim is to develop a design for survey research group project about one or several intersectional dimensions of equity (e.g., gender, ethnic, religious, sexual, socio-economic). Active participation in introductory week, lectures, feedback sessions, and independent group work is a necessary precondition for a successful completion of the course. The course will be launched by introductory week in which the university staff and the students will get the chance to get to know each other, brainstorm ideas and form groups. In the best case, during the introductory week students will have decided on a topic/research question and formed groups. Students will accumulate material for their group projects throughout the semester. Students are expected to apply the methods that they have just learned to their research question and to present their results to the supervisors or their peers in the next feedback session. The accumulated material will be the basis for preparing their: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Final presentation (max. 20 min) • Survey portfolio (10 pages plus appendix documents such as questionnaires) The survey portfolio will consist of a 10 pages description and motivation of the research question and the research design. The appendix consists of the necessary research instruments (e.g., questionnaire, sampling frame, cognitive interviews). Evaluation criteria: 10 active participations in lectures, feedback sessions, and independent group work (1 active participation = 4 points) = 40 points 1 final presentation = 30 points 1 survey portfolio = 30 points Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes:

This is a joint course offered by an ENLIGHT alliance of nine European universities (University of the Basque Country, University of Bordeaux, Comenius University Bratislava, National University Ireland Galway, Ghent University, University of Göttingen, University of Groningen, University of Tartu, and Uppsala University).

Students will learn how to design survey research according to their ideas and desired subtopic of equity, in intercultural groups from interdisciplinary perspective. In the course, students will develop disciplinary and transversal skills.

Regarding the disciplinary skills, students will broaden their understanding of challenges of different dimensions of equity and get an idea of which topic they want to focus on in their own project. Students will gain knowledge about quantitative and qualitative research methods needed for the implementation of a survey, including sampling and statistical power calculation, which enables students to determine the necessary number of participants for statistical inference. Students will also learn how to conduct cognitive interviews, such that students see if participants understand survey question in the way they had intended it.

Regarding the transversal skills, students will improve their intercultural communication skills as the design of the course requires multinational student groups to constantly interact and work together. Students will also learn how to work in an international academic team and deal with challenges related to such teamwork.

Class syllabus:

Course contents:

1. Introductory week + introduction to the course;
2. Definitions and conceptualizations of equity;
3. Different dimensions of equity;
4. Survey research design;
5. Developing research question;
6. Operationalizing variables;
7. Pre-testing surveys in cognitive interviews;
8. Sampling;
9. Calculating statistical power;
10. Modes of data collection;
11. Developing analytical plan;
12. Survey research ethics;
13. Summary of the course.

Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Conditions for passing the course: The course is graded: Assignments are 40% of the final grade. Short tests are 30% of the final grade. The exam is 30% of the final grade. Rating: A: 91-100 points; B: 81-90 points; C: 73-80 points; D: 66-72 points; E: 60-65 points; Fx: 0-59 points
Learning outcomes: Learning outcomes: Students become familiar with major contemporary debates taking place in the EU. They will learn how to analytically grasp concepts that accompany the EU integration processes at national as well as supranational level of governance, like for instance: the democratic governance, core state powers, supranational vs. intergovernmental dynamics, EU's actorness, differentiated integration, national sovereignty, internal institutional dynamics. Students will be able to situate these concepts into the ongoing debates about the future of the EU integration. Each concept is examined in a relation to a specific empirical phenomenon or crisis that the EU overcome in past years (economic, financial, migration, security) what stimulates student's analytical thinking. By the end of the course, students should: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. understand the nature of the European Union and its governance; 2. have a detailed knowledge of some areas of EU policy making, 3. be able to analyse the challenges the EU is facing

Class syllabus:

Course contents:

1. Introduction to the course. 2. EU's polity formation. 3. The European Council – the EU's centre of political gravity? 4. Supranationalism the old and new and the executive order - The European Commission. 5. The Council – policy coordinator and consensus generator? 6. The European Parliament – the challenge of reconstituting democracy in the EU. 7. The institutional logics of European integration – competing or complementary perspectives? 8. The three Crises – Economic, Institutional and Security. 9. The EU's coping mechanisms – Differentiated Integration (of the core state powers) and segmentation. 10. What future for the EU integration project?
